FOUR DIE AS BOAT UPSETS

RICH YOUTHS DROWN OFF R. I.; ONE SAVED; WATER'S TOLL IS NINE

Coast guards scoured the waters off the southern New England coast today for the bodies of four youths, one from Boston, who are believed to have drowned when their sailboat capsized.

This accident increased the week-end toll of deaths by drowning to nine in New England waters.

Those for youths are:

Lloyd Bakson, 21, of Boston.
John Belmain, 19, of Philadelphia.
Joseph E. Scales, 21, Louisville, Ky.
Trowbridge Cottrell, 21, of Westerly, R. I.

All are sons of wealthy parents summering in the vicinity of Watch Hill, R. I.

TUNNEY BACK IN N. Y. 'LOOKING FOR A JOB'

New York, Aug. 13 (INS)—Gene Tunney, vying desperately to achieve the status of a "private citizen" since the announcement of his engagement to "Polly" Lauder, $50,000,000 hoss, was back in New York today from his fiance's island home.

With the pronunciation of the prize ring one "Gentleman Gene" was striving to snap off the bright light of publicity that brought him from the ring to the top of his chosen profession and to command in full the title to the fame and fortune heaped upon him.

Two rounds of other men in New York Mr. James Joseph Tunney "on downtown." He had arrived on this morning on the Bar Harbor mess from South Bristol, Me. He announced brusquely to his associates that he "was going downtown," but he "wouldn't be back until late" and disappeared.

There were rumors that he was "looking for a job," and that this was the explanation of the trip downtown. No one connected with the former Tunney entourage could or would say anything about it.

No arrangements for a statement had been made and Tunney seemingly wished to stick to his avowal in Maine that he is through with statements to the press.

"He was very much put out by the actions of reporters and cameramen in Maine," it was said for Gene at the Biltmore.

In slipping away from John's Island, the Lauder summer home off South Bristol, Tunney and the Lauders saw to it that all available boats were hired to remain tied up, effectively crippling the style of an army of reporters.

One of the boatmen, Ernest Alley, whose craft the scribes had been using, said that the mother of Miss

Baron to Give Bremen Plane to Some U. S. Museum

Berlin, Aug. 13 (AP)—Baron von Huenefeld, owner of the transatlantic monoplane, the Bremen, which Capt. Hermann Koehl and Lt. James Fitzmaurice piloted across the Atlantic, will make a present of the disabled plane to an American museum yet to be designated.

In a letter to Jacob Gould Schurman, ambassador to Germany, from a sanitarium where he is recovering from an appendicitis operation, Baron von Huenefeld said he had decided to make a gift of the Bremen to the United States in appreciation of American interest in the flight.

The monoplane Bremen, which recently was taken to Quebec from Greenly Island where the transatlantic flight ended, was reassembled and placed on display at the Quebec exposition.

GOLD COASTERS WIN FIRST COURT ACTION IN PADLOCK BATTLE

"Brickbottom" and "Gold Coast" won the first round of rum war padlock battle in the equity motion session of Suffolk Superior Court today.

With police officers in court ready to testify on the application for 19 padlock injunctions on Somerville establishments, Dist.-Atty. Bushnell received a technical setback when the court ordered a week's postponement of the cases.

Judge Stanley A. Cox granted the continuance after Attorney William R. Scharton, representing 10 of the defendants, declared himself not yet prepared for defense of what would be the first rum case under the new padlock law.

Bushnell was ordered to prepare affidavits in each of the 19 cases, and to have copies in the hands of defense counsel by tomorrow noon.

Judge Cox also ordered defense counsel to prepare affidavits in reply and submit these to the district attorney.

Reform charged, in his address to the court, that the move was part of a political conspiracy.

He told the court he was preparing a bill in equity and a restraining order against Bushnell, Major-General Alfred F. Foote, Chief of Police McBride of Cambridge and Chief of Police Kendall of Somerville to "end the harrasing and interference with citizens and property" in the "Brickbottom" and "Gold Coast" districts.

He declared there were between

6 HELD IN POISON PLOT

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 12—One person was dead, three others seriously ill and six under arrest here as an outcome of what police say is a plot on the part of discontented wives and husbands to get rid of their spouses.

S. W. Daniels, alias Prof. Brandorni who posed as a fortune teller and crystal gazer has confessed, police say, that he sold poison to Mrs. E. F. Pressley, then Mrs. L. M. Lockamy, knowing that she intended to use it to cause the death of her husband.

The husband, Lockamy, died June 6 and his widow married E. F. Pressley three weeks later. Both Mr. and Mrs. Pressley were arrested and charged with murder.

The others in custody of the police, Mrs. L. M. Prigden, Mrs. Leigh Townley and J. H. Moore, negro preacher, are said to have bought poison from Daniels and to have given it to their mates, who are seriously ill.

Mrs. Prideen and Mrs. Townley said they gave their husbands powders after Daniels said they would "improve the situation at home." A list of Daniels' clients was found after a girl, arrested for shoplifting, said she needed money to pay him for an illegal operation.

CHILL WEATHER IS DUE TO LINGER A FEW DAYS

"More of the same for several days" is the weather outlook, according to the experts, who see a continuation of the rare August combination of north to east winds and sunny skies. The cool wave put vacationists under wraps at Rangeley, Me., which shared with Greenfield, Mass., the distinction of having the medium mark of 42. The tropical storm that swept over Florida and headed north vanished off the Atlantic coast after deluging Washington under 3.6 inches of rain in 48 hours.

CHARLESTOWN BOY GETS YEAR AS AUTO SPEEDER

Fun's fun, but it cost George Randall, 18, of Pearl st., Charlestown, plenty today in Charlestown court to be found guilty as a "phantom speeder" who has been annoying the district for weeks.

Randall was sentenced to one year on a charge of driving in a manner tending to endanger the lives and safety of the public.

He was fined $10 for operating a motor vehicle without a license.

On a charge of larceny of an automobile, he was held for the grand jury.

When the youth appealed the sentence and fine, bail totalling $3,100 was fixed by the court.

Police testified at the hearing that although Randall when arrested gave Cottage st. as his address, it was learned later that he lives in Pearl st.

Randall was arrested after a wild chase through Bunker Hill st. that ended when the flooring car, a stolen machine, skidded in making a turn and crashed into a pole.

The youth leaped out and ran through a field, but officers of Capt. Livingston's flying squadron pursued and captured him.

HOOVER LEADS SMITH IN NATION-WIDE VOTING

By JOHN W. DIENHART

Chicago, Aug. 13—Herbert Hoover is ahead of Alfred E. Smith in their race for election as the next President of the United States.

Straw vote returns from virtually half of the states in the union, taken in the Hearst newspapers' nation-wide poll, give the Republican nominee 52,031 and the Democratic nominee 51,291.

Hoover also has the lead in Chicago and Illinois.

Forty-five of the 101 counties in the state give him a total of 3,329 to 687 for Smith.

Sixteen of the 30 wards in the city show this division of sentiment: Hoover, 5,039; Smith, 4,814.

Comparison of the returns with those taken in a similar poll a month ago shows Smith's strength is concentrated in the larger cities.

While the farmers may be disappointed over their failure to win legislative aid from the present Republican administration, they are not holding their favorite party, the figures disclose.

Of special interest are the early returns from the bitterly contested border states. Hoover has the lead in Kentucky and Missouri, while

SEARCH REVERE BEACH FOR 'LOST' CHILDREN

Search was made at Revere Beach and other resorts today for two Lowell children, missing since Tuesday, when their stepmother gave them a $10 bill with which to get their hair cut.

They are Etta Callahan, 11, and her brother, Frederick, 9, children of Frederick S. Callahan of Bleachery st., Lowell.

Because they have left home for a day or two on several previous occasions no concern was felt for them until their absence was prolonged to nearly a week. Boston police and the authorities of surrounding cities and towns were asked today to aid in finding them.

There are nine children in the Callahan family, one of them, Louise, 18, is at Revere, and the stepmother, Mrs. Edith Callahan, believes the missing boy and girl may have started in that direction. A brother, Edmund, 16, began a search there today.

N. Y.-FLORIDA LINER ON ROCKS OFF BAHAMAS

Miami, Fla., Aug. 13 (AP)—While storm warnings were flying along the southern tip of Florida today in a weak tropical disturbance within a sea, a coastwise liner, with two score passengers aboard, was struggling with a tug to free herself from the shoals off Hole-in-the-Wall, Great Abaco, Bahamas.

The liner Munamar, New York-bound from Miami via Nassau, with several prominent Floridians aboard, went ashore yesterday, although the cause of the mishap was not attributed to the present storm, which is striking the west coast along the Keys. The tug Lady Cordeaux of Nassau was standing by, and expecting to free the liner within a few hours.

Although the barometer was slightly below normal throughout southern Florida today, and rain continued to fall, accompanied by fitful winds ranging upward to 30 miles an hour the major tropical storm which one appeared as if it would follow last week's hurricane, was veering westward. It apparently was blowing with damaging force off western Cuba toward Yucatan.

TWINS, UNAFRAID, FACE DEATH UNDER THE KNIFE

New York, Aug. 13 (INS)—Ready if need be to barter their lives for love, Mary and Margaret Gibb, 17, Holyoke, Mass., "Siamese twins," were to be cut apart today or tomorrow at Park West Hospital.

Decision to operate to sever the twins, joined at the base of the spine, was announced by Dr. Frank P. Weston following a conference with several distinguished surgeons.

Dr. Weston in deciding to make the operation is setting the heavy stake of his professional reputation in the scale, for other surgeons pointing to the fact that no such operation has ever been completely successful, say it cannot be done.

One win, perhaps both, may die, or one or both may be crippled for life as a result of the operation, it is said by the skeptics.

200 and 300 police stopping and searching persons and searching property without any legal right, and that the blockade was a violation of decency and the rights of citizenship.

In the meantime the police guard over the sections continued with such success that but one case of drunkenness was booked at the East Cambridge police station where previously the figure for a week and has reached as high as 60. The previous low mark was 15. Conditions were the quietest in years, police said.

State troopers said they had learned that four bootleggers had despaired of again resuming business there and had departed for other fields.

Boston Liquor Joints Fear Wilson Crusade

Proprietors of Boston's liquor "joints"—and the owners of the properties in which they are housed —were a good deal more than a little perturbed today as Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson speeded up his plans for a wholesale padlocking crusade.

The commissioner will utilize the new padlock law which went into effect last June and under which Dist. Atty. Busbnell of Middlesex seeks the closing of 19 establishments in Somerville's "Hockhottom" and "Field Coast" districts.

Although Wilson expected to start action today, it will probably be another week before the complete reports of division captains and the liquor squad will be checked with listed property owners in the registry of deeds, and the court actions started.

RECHECKING REPORTS

Capt. George W. Patterson of the liquor squad is also rechecking the "division captains" reports which do not contain arrests and convictions brought about by the squad.

In the meantime, authorities learned, the proprietors of the various speakeasies in the downtown Boston section are having a bit of trouble with landlords and owners who are shying at the prospect of having their properties placed under lock and key, perhaps for a year's period.

Property owners taking exorbitant rents from bootleggers are demanding written agreements that the "padlock" dispensers vacate properly in case they lose a second conviction and in any case suspend activities upon a second arrest until court disposition of the latter.

A moot point to be decided by the courts is whether co-owners secured before the padlock law went into being may be counted in the necessary three for a padlock injunction, or has it to be retroactive to include them. Landlords of establishments, otherwise innocent, will be in the way of being closed.

In the last eight years, one South End house has been raided 31 times and convictions secured practically every time. On the same street there have been more than eight in 10 houses. A downtown "joint" was raided three times within the week preceding Christmas, but year.

All these may be padlocked if the law is held constitutional, but no action may be taken against any of them if the court holds the three necessary convictions must have been secured after June 16, when the bill became active.

Gibbs Twins Ready To Risk All for Love Hilton Pair Scorn Separation

PREPARED TO DICE WITH DEATH

Mary and Margaret Gibbs, the famous Siamese twins of Holyoke, have been told by Dr. Francis P. Weston that there is a chance for life after a proposed operation to sever them, and the hazardous operation is expected to take place today or tomorrow.

BOTH DIED WITHIN FEW MINUTES

Josefa Blazek died from jaundice in a Chicago hospital six years ago. Her twin sister, Rosa, passed on a few minutes afterward. Surgeons were aware of the imminence of death for both, but did not dare to operate. Josefa was the mother of a twelve-year-old boy at the time. Her husband was killed in the World War. Rosa was a spinster. Both were forty-three years old and natives of Bohemia.

Told of the plans of the Gibbs twins, Daisy and Violet Hilton of San Antonio professed scorn for such an operation. "Together we were born," the Siamese twins chorused, "and together we will go until death do us part. Our lives and bodies are molded in such a way that if we were separated life probably would not be worth living." They evaded, however, a query as to what effect love for a man might have upon them.

According to Mr. Kimball, the organization will endeavor to coöperate with all other local uplift bodies in its fight to protect the Sabbath and will issue a Sabbath's appeal for adherents.

Scores Rescued, One Missing in Delaware Bay Storm

Philadelphia, Aug. 13 (AP)—One man is missing and nearly 100 persons were rescued during the northeast storm which abated early today after lashing the coast from Virginia Capes to Sandy Hook.

The missing man is Otto Godfrey, who was swept away when the tug Radiant sank in Delaware Bay near Odessa, Del. He wore a life belt and it is hoped he has been picked up. His brother Frank, chief engineer of the tug, was believed to have drowned, but today turned up in Odessa. Eight other members of the tug crew and a passenger were rescued.

The British tramp steamer Athelbeach, which was blown aground off Ship John Light at the Delaware capes, was floated today.

The coalladen barge Irwin, which was being towed by the tug Prudence from Norfolk to New York with two other barges, sank off Sea Isle City, N. J., and her crew was taken aboard the Prudence. The men were landed here today, and one of them was taken to a hospital with a broken leg. The Prudence abandoned the barge Horace Alva with 12 feet of water in her hold after taking off her crew, but safely brought to port the third barge, the Winsor.

The tug T. J. Hooper abandoned two of her three barges off Hereford Inlet, N. J., and sought shelter at the Delaware breakwater. Today the tug went out to pick them up. The barges are the Mahant and Smith and Perry No. 2 They were in ballast. The third barge, which was brought to the Breakwater, is the E. R. Haggett.

Heavy rainfall accompanied the gale.

Along Maryland the wind reached a velocity of 70 miles an hour, but diminished as it swept northward.

Bridges were washed out, and crops heavily damaged in Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

A lifeboat crew from the American steamer Innoko rescued a man from the mast of a foundered tug in Delaware Bay, but was blown on the beach.

The yacht of Representative Isaac Bacharach of Atlantic City, N. J., was blown aground in Great Bay, the party being forced to wade across flooded meadows for nearly a mile to safety. In the party, which included several women, was Charles Grokelow of Philadelphia, former grand exalted ruler of the Elks, and Harry Bacharach, former Mayor of Atlantic City. It was learned the yacht, valued at $50,000, would be a total loss.

After taking the money from the cash register, the robbers removed Battaglia's trousers, containing 25, and took them along, to prevent him from pursuing them.

PICNIC RAIDERS ARREST 24

Merrimac, Aug. 13—Swooping down unexpectedly on several hundred men and girls enjoying an outing on the picnic grounds near Crescent lake, State police and members of the Merrimac force arrested eighteen men and six women.

One of the men was taken on a liquor charge. The others, including three members of an orchestra, were charged with participating in a public diversion of the Lord's Day.

The picnic had been advertised in the Russian colonies of half a dozen cities for several weeks past. The picknickers arrived early in the day from Lowell, Haverhill, Lawrence and Newmarket, N. H.

While the fun was on, details of State police from Framingham and Topsfield arrived at the picnic grounds. The State troopers were in plain clothes and were unrecognized as they mingled with the picknickers.

Outside the grounds Chief James Deegan of the Merrimac police force and the four members of his force waited in an automobile.

The orchestra was playing a fox trot and the dance hall was crowded when the State police gave the signal for the raid. The Merrimac officers entered the grounds at once and aided in the arrests.

Carol Dimoriski, of Warren st., Haverhill, was taken on the charge of keeping and exposing liquor for sale. One of the State officers alleged that he purchased half a pint of moonshine from Dimoriski for 50 cents.

As many of the dancers as could be handled were herded into a corner and were told they were under arrest.

Three members of the orchestra were also taken. They included Joseph Kurzoly, drummer, of Haverhill; Nicholas Flonsky, accordion player, of Haverhill, and Joseph Kakog, violinist, of Haverhill.

The prisoners were taken in automobile trucks to the Merrimac police station where all were later released on bail.

The six girls and 17 of the men were released after putting up security of $10 each, while Dimoriski was taken on the liquor charge, gave bail of $300.

The 24 will be tried in the district court at Amesbury Wednesday morning.

The women arrested gave their names as Annie Budosky, Haverhill; Tully Kozal, Newmarket, N. H.; Sophie Wawrzkewicz, Newmarket, N. H.; Julia Wawrzkewicz, Newmarket, N. H.; Tackla Kenerlin, and Mrs. Anthony Zinki, Haverhill.

No comment could be obtained today from the hospital on the scheduled operation. "The matter is entirely in Dr. Weston's hands," it was said.

HERO, 7, IS DROWNED

Coastguard stations along the shore reported receiving telephone calls informing them of cries heard from the waters off Fisher's Island and heard during the night.

Among others drowned in weekend accidents were James Creedon, son of Broadway, Cambridge, who leaped into the waters of the Broad canal, Cambridge, in a vain effort to save his brother Alfred, three, who had accidentally tumbled in. The bodies were recovered.

Joseph Chisholm, 22, of Dickens st., Dorchester, was drowned in Lake Hebgbic, Amherst, N. H.; John Gazakas, 35, of Curtis st., Haverhill, Joseph D. Driscoll, 47, of Lowell st., lost his life at Salisbury Beach, and Worcester, was a victim at Mattapoisett.

HUNT MISSING CHILDREN

The last absence of the same two children was only two weeks ago, and on that occasion they were away for two days. Returning, they told conflicting stories, the girl saying a truck driver had taken them to Tewksbury. She acted as if dazed ever since, Mrs. Callahan told police.

A canal near the Callahan home in Lowell may be dragged eventually if no trace of them is found, but the police believe, in view of their known wandering tendencies, that they are alive somewhere.

According to the parents, Etta was given the $10 bill and told to take her brother with her to the barber shop. They were seen to start in the right direction, but the proprietor of the shop in question said he had not seen them.

Other barber shops were canvassed by the frantic parents without success. Relatives in other cities and towns were notified and the parents and Lowell police waited several days in the hope they would return, as usual, but got a single clue to their whereabouts or the direction they took was obtained.

The girl is described as of light complexion, with brown hair and blue eyes, and she wore a pink dress, high black shoes and black stockings. The boy wore overalls, a black and white checked blouse and brown sneakers.

TUNNEY LEAVES IN DISGUISE

Lauder had paid him forty times as much as he could get from carrying the newspapermen, to keep his boat tied up indefinitely.

All the other boatmen said they also had been retained by Mrs. Lauder, not to carry any passengers, today.

Shortly after dark, newspapermen received a tip that Tunney was to start for New York. Finding they could not hire a boat at South Bristol, they made a hurried nine-mile automobile trip to get one at Pennaquick. Reaching John's Island, they discovered that the Splay, high-powered steam boat of the Lauders, was not at her dock.

The boat, which probably had Tunney on board, had gone to Hog Island, owned by Fred Ewing, which is connected by a bridge with the mainland and is three miles nearer to Newcastle than South Bristol.

STONE SWEARS OFF FLYING; TO DANCE AGAIN

New London, Ct., Aug. 13—Fred Stone is certain of two things. The first is that he'll be back on the stage within a few months, as good a "hoofer" as he ever was, and the other is that he's through with aviation for all time.

Stone, in an interview as he lay on his bed at the Lawrence Memorial Hospital, recovering from his airplane accident of a week ago, expressed the belief he would be back on Broadway in a Ziegfeld production, perhaps no later than next Christmas. He said:

"I've made such rapid recovery in the past week that I'm certain I'll be able to dance again as good as ever.

"Why, if old Dave Montgomery were here, I'd like playing my old part in 'The Wizard of Oz' again —and that was the role that required the most physical exertion I've ever had to do."

Stone, according to hospital surgeons, is making unusually rapid progress toward recovery. There is a possibility he can be removed from the hospital to his country estate near here, within five or six weeks.

Stone's retirement from aviation is not the result of any fear which his experience caused, he explained, but is solely due to a promise made Mrs. Stone that he will make no more flights.

The patient is quite apprehensive, however, lest his near-fatal accident have a somewhat detrimental effect upon the progress of aviation, saying:

"I wish you would set the world right straight upon the fact that trial faulty judgment and not to any mechanical weakness in my ship.

MOVIES DEPICT NEWSPAPER IN THE MAKING

"Extra! Extra! Read all about the rescue at sea! Extra!"

You pause, homeward bound, and buy a copy of a great metropolitan newspaper.

There is a headline: "Daring Rescue of Antinoe's Crew."

You read and read the long morning report that the S. S. Antinoe, British freighter, was sinking at sea. You will read how the crew of the S. S. President Roosevelt scrawled out more epic across the turbulent waves in an heroic rescue of the freighter's crew.

The story gives you an accurate yet vivid word picture—a series of pictures. The Antinoe on her beam ends in a hurricane sea. A wireless man working in his post, tapping away from his radio room the SOS that meant life for more than 50 men.

COMES THE RACE

Another "Sparks" on the Roosevelt picking up that call. The race of a ship to aid another ship. Small boats tossed ship-like across the waves. The last plunge of the Antinoe.

And a laconic wireless message. "Rescued crew S. S. Antinoe."

The story thrills you. It is truth with the power to grip. It is an epic of real life. You pay it for two cents in your newspaper.

How did it get there?

WHAT IS THE STORY BEHIND THE STORY?

It is the making of a newspaper in which, if you are the average person, you have given little thought.

Behind every story in the day's news there is another story seldom told or pictured. The story of "The Making of a Newspaper."

THEN THE NEWS

The "flash" that comes in an editorial room when a big story breaks. The race of reporters and photographers to the scene. Dangers and difficulties encountered and overcome—they must be overcome. The writing of the story in a race with time. The transformation of pictures into "cuts" for printing.

Battle of linotype machines as type and words become metal words. Rumble of great presses as metal words become printed words again. Great stacks of warm, new newspapers rushed from press to delivery room, from delivery room to the street.

"The papers on the street!"

Every day several times a day, the drama and the romance that go into the making of a newspaper are enacted in every newspaper office. You may witness it all, accurately pictured, next week at Loew's State Theater.

It is a moving picture called "The Making of a Newspaper," and it was filmed in the plants of Hearst newspapers throughout the country.

You, resources of 28 newspapers serving 20,000,000 readers in 18 cities, went into its making.

NOW THE MOVIES

You see the actual rescue movies of the rescue of the Antinoe's crew, made at sea by International Newsreel. You follow that story through every department of the Hearst newspapers from editorial room to the street.

You see William Randolph Hearst, himself; Arthur Brisbane, the great editor; Colonel Frank Knox, general manager of Hearst publications; George McManus of "Bringing Up Father" fame, and a host of other notables in the service.

For the first time the story behind the story is accurately told. Its telling on the screen at Loew's State Theater will take but 21 minutes, though months of preparation and filming went into its preparation.

See it, and know how your paper is made.

INFANT UNHURT IN 25-FOOT PLUNGE

While playing in his crib, Ernest Copello, 1, of Spencer ave., Chelsea, lost his balance and fell through a window 25 feet to the ground. He is shown here with a nurse at Chelsea Memorial Hospital, apparently none the worse from the fall, the reason being that the window screen went down with him and acted as a sort of life net.

FLAWS IN NOTE BY 'AMUNDSEN'

Amsterdam, Aug. 13 (INS)—Belief that the Amundsen message washed ashore at Bottumeroog in a bottle is false was based upon the fact the writer failed to give both latitude and longitude. It is thought Amundsen would have specified his position exactly if he had actually written the note which read: "Latham one point seven point." The explorer was in a French Latham seaplane when he disappeared 78 degrees 23 minutes east with five companions in June.

London, Aug. 13 — The commander of the Russian ice breaker, Krassin, who arrived at Stavanger, Norway, on Saturday, announced his belief that Capt. Roald Amundsen is still alive and his determination to continue the search for him, said an Oslo dispatch to the London Daily Mail today.

LANCASTER MILLS TO SELL UNPROFITABLE PROPERTY

In an effort to avoid liquidation, stockholders of the Lancaster Mills of Clinton, at a meeting held here today, empowered the board of directors to dispose of such machinery, buildings, tenements, supplies as they do not consider can be profitably operated in the future.

The president and treasurer were given increased powers, the full extent of which are to be determined by the corporation or its directors. The sale of the machinery, together with the disposal of the buildings housing them, will secure sufficient funds to put the firm on a sounder financial footing.

Oarsmen Average 50 Miles Per Day

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 13—Sore Hampton river. They went ashore ferring only slight inconveniences and had lunch at Hampton. At from sore muscles, Dr. Tommy K. about 2:30 they resumed their journey, and at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon they arrived in Portsmouth harbor. They covered about 25 miles during the day.

They pitched their 30-ounce tent on Wood Island where the Portsmouth Harbor Coast Guard Station is located. They will spend the night there and put out for their destination early this morning.

Willington said over the telephone: "We both feel pretty stiff, but we're getting a great kick out of the trip. We weren't trying to make any record. We just went to enjoy Richards, Harvard athletic physician and Lawrence Worthington, today resumed their wherry trip from Boston to St. Johns, New Brunswick.

Favored by excellent breezes, the two Massachusetts sportsmen reached here from Plum Island, where they spent their first night out. An average of fifty miles has been maintained by the oarsmen for each of the two days they have been on their journey.

A northeast wind, which caused a swell, hampered the two ergs, and last year they were forced to stop at a quiet trip up the coast.

SAYS MEXICO DOESN'T NEED FOREIGN AID

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 13 (AP)—Until Mexico has solved her own problems and has inculcated civic and personal responsibility into the masses, there never can be any certainty as to the stability of the Mexican government, Prof. H. T. Collings of the University of Pennsylvania today told the Institute of Politics.

While marked progress along these lines already had been made, the speaker declared, there still was a great deal to be accomplished. He believed, however, Mexico was entirely capable of bringing about these reforms without foreign intervention or assistance.

Mexico's internal problems, as Prof. Collings sees them, are: To break up the vast estates and distribute the land among the people; to extend the suffrage to all the people; to set up direct taxation on land and income and to separate church and state.

The Pennsylvania professor asserted that with the exception of the Soviet constitution, the Mexican constitution was the most radical in the world. In its labor provisions, he said, one cause declared the right of utility workers, postmen and policemen to strike, while another clause denied the right of an employer to discharge a worker except on the grounds of infraction.

Referring to the ill feeling between the United States and Mexico over subsoil legislation, Prof. Collings declared the Morrow arrangement appeared to have settled the problem.

CHINESE HEED JAP WARNING

Tokyo, Aug. 13 (AP)—A dispatch from Mukden to the newspaper Asahi today said that Chang Hsueh-Liang, military governor of Mukden, had unconditionally accepted Japan's "advice" that he refrain from placing Manchuria under the domination of the Nanking nationalists.

It is understood in Tokyo that the agreement against which Japan warned Chang gave Nanking control of the Mukden government's foreign relations while granting Mukden complete autonomy in domestic matters.

The Reuter correspondent in Mukden says he learned from reliable sources that in a farewell conversation Baron Hayashi told Chang that Japan would prevent a Manchurian-Nanking alliance, even if Tokyo should have to interfere in China's internal affairs.

WOMAN IN RACE FOR GOVERNOR 'INDEPENDENT'

Mrs. Edith H. MacFadden of 15 Francis ave., Cambridge, who two weeks ago caused a furore in political circles by taking out papers for the G. O. P. nomination for Governor, has decided to run on an independent ticket.

Inability to get the requisite 2500 signatures in five counties, as required by law, due to the shortness of time between her decision to run and the final day for filing for the primary, August 14, caused Mrs. MacFadden to change her plans.

As an independent candidate for Governor, 1000 signatures from any part of the State are necessary. She will have until 5 p. m. September 10, to file such papers with the secretary of state.

As previously announced, Mrs. MacFadden will make her chief issue the lifting of tax exemptions on real estate, such as churches, fraternal and benevolent associations property.

In support of this plank, she has taken out papers under the public policy act to have the various representative districts vote on the question.

HELD FOR DEATH OF MAN RIDING IN HIS AUTO

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 13 (AP)—Hugh Clark, 24, of Lincoln, was arraigned here today charged with manslaughter and was released in $1,000 bonds for a hearing Aug. 22.

Clark was in an automobile driven by James B. Dillon of Pawtucket, with Louis A. Quinn of Central Falls, on July 4 when Quinn was killed. Coroner William A. Poole said Quinn and Clark were fighting, causing Dillon to lose control of the car and he believed Clark responsible for the trouble.

MRS. WALKER'S MOTHER SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Clinton, Ia., Aug. 13 (INS)—Mrs. Etta Traverse Allen, mother-in-law of Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, who underwent an operation here for anemia, was recovering today, according to word from the hospital. She will be able to return to New York in ten days, it was said.

Her physician, Paul Cromer, gave twelve ounces of his blood for transfusion. Mrs. Walker is with her mother and expects to return with her to New York.

SOCIETY WOMEN BACK MEXICO REBEL HOSPITAL

The hospital is believed to have been sponsored and financed by society women of the city, several of whom were arrested.

NOTED BOSTONIANS ATTEND CARCASSONNE TOURNAMENTS

Dr. Sarah Ellen Palmer Among Those to Visit Famous City, Says Betty Alden

BOSTONIANS WHO DO THEIR SUMMERTIME EUROPEAN PILGRIMAGES along the lesser known paths, far from the broad beaten track of the ordinary tourists, went to Carcassonne for the tournaments. Dr. Sarah Ellen Palmer was such a traveler, visiting the famous medieval walled city during her present tour abroad. The beauty of age-old pageantry, revived from 2000 years ago, she found marvelously inspiring. Knighthood was in flower when Carcassonne was young, and everyone making their way to the French shrine of antiquity was richly rewarded by the magnificently revived tournament.

DR. PALMER'S TRIP HAS OF COURSE INCLUDED PARIS AND London. Many friends in both these capitals, and an abiding love for the charms of each, make more or less lengthy visits imperative. This season she has added an intensive tour of Wales to her usual program, and without doubt something interesting of Welsh origin will be incorporated in the illustrated talks Dr. Palmer gives each winter to a delighted and select clientele. Not so very many weeks will elapse before Dr. Palmer is home again, her summer abroad having commenced way back in April.

A GLORIOUS BIT OF SUMMER COLOR AND FRAGRANCE IS offered the stay-at-home Bostonian, likewise the Bostonian happening in town, at the gladiolus exhibition. Cards have gone out from the Horticultural Society and the Gladiolus Society for a joint exhibition, August 18 and 19 from 3 to 9 o'clock, at Horticultural Hall. Probably in all its floral and botanical history, so rich in beauty, Horticultural's gray vaulted spaces have never held color more flaunting than is arranged for these two days. The gorgeous blooms will be there in all their August fulsomeness.

LOVELY DARK-EYED MISS MARY LOUISE ALMY WILL BE A vision worth traveling many miles to see when she and John Wright Aldis are wed. And travel many a mile many of the guests will, since the greater portion of them are Bostonians, the nuptial vows are given in a fine old New Bedford ecclesiastical edifice, and the wedding reception takes its felicitous way at Quanset Farm. A memorial estate down in sea girt South Westport, is Quanset, the William Almy summer home, a dozen or so long country miles away from the altar before which the "I will's" and the "I take thee's" are solemnly spoken.

QUANSETT HAS COUNTLESS CHARMS. FIRST AND FOREmost, its pride and its joy are the horses and hounds of the Quanset Hunt, of which William Almy, Jr., is master, and who rides on the anise seed trail two or three times each week through the spring and autumn. The atmosphere of a leisured gentleman's country home is intensified at Quanset by enormous stables, up to date kennels, farmers' cottages, paddocks, huge barns and real farming paraphernalia. Crowning this picture of rural beauty is the manor house itself, comfortably colonial and commanding a magnificent reach of sea, sandy beach and rolling meadows.

THE ALMY ESTATE IS A SHOW PLACE DOWN IN THE WESTport region, where charming old time New England remains unchanged by modernity. Not very many miles stretch between Quanset and the home at Barney's Joy where Mr. and Mrs. Robert Almy spend their summers. It's quite near enough to the parent estate so that both Mr. and Mrs. Almy, the younger, may ride after the Almy hounds that go racing across the almost perfect hunting country this southern corner of Massachusetts affords.

THE HOMING ONES ARRIVING VIA LUXURIOUS LINERS FROM foreign parts include some of the Lee family connection who went abroad to see a youthful kinsman married; Mrs. Charles Mifflin Hammond, who was Harriet Lee; Mrs. Sewall H. Fessenden, who was Caroline Lee, and Miss Louise Fessenden, who is the latter's daughter. When George Cabot Lee, Jr., of Boston and London, decided to take unto himself a wife in his foster home, England, numerous departures for the tight little island were in order among the clan of Lee.

THE MARRIAGE RITES BEING duly accomplished, with a ceremonial significance worthy the occasion when a Lee of Boston marries a charming girl of his own exalted station, most of the wedding guests went a-touring. Mrs. Fessenden, Mrs. Hammond and Miss Fessenden did exactly that. And now, if previously made plans are being followed, they are about to come down the gangplank of the modernistic liner, Ile de France as she makes New York, after a jaunt of several weeks about the Continent. The Fessendens have a North Shore estate and to it mother and daughter will repair.

THE ILE DE FRANCE BRINGS in a trio of young men travelers. They are J. Harleston Parker, Jr., James Parker, 2nd, and A. Lithgow Devens, Jr. Traveling all over Europe was the early summertime program indulged in by these youthful scions of important Boston families, as is indicated by the "Juniors" and "Second's" after their respective names. They roamed wherever fancy dictated, and come home again only when travel allowances run low and scholastic duties loom ahead on the near horizon.

HUGE CATAPULT TO HURL PLANE

New York, Aug. 13 (AP)—The first attempt to catapult an airplane from the deck of a moving steamship was scheduled to be made today aboard the incoming liner Ile de France while the vessel is 400 to 500 miles from New York.

A 60-ton catapult and an amphibian plane were loaded on the liner when she sailed from Havre last Wednesday. If the attempt is successful the plane will reach quarantine early tonight. The liner is not due until tomorrow morning.

The catapult, operated by compressed air, is destined to hurl eight tons into the air at a speed of 88 miles an hour. The plane weighs 7475 pounds and will have aboard Commander Louis Demougeot, pilot; B. Monroveau, radio operator, and A. Sarrauh, mechanic. It will carry a part of the liner's mail cargo.

SAYS PATTERSON WAS NOT ASLEEP AT WHEEL

Denial that Clare Patterson, 17-year-old coffee boy at a Bretton Woods hotel in New Hampshire visiting his sweetheart, was asleep at the wheel or that his car plunged into a river at Jefferson, N. H., was made today by his sister.

According to the sister, young Patterson had been visiting her home in Berlin and was on his way back to Bretton Woods with two boy companions when their car was struck by a machine from Lancaster. There is no river in the vicinity the sister declared.

Patterson is in a critical condition at St. Louis Hospital in Berlin. The other boys suffered serious injuries also.

Burial service for Henry Hartshorn Hack and Robert G. Howell, the other victims, will be held tomorrow. Howell was the son of John White Howell, chief engineer of the lamp works of the General Electric Company. He is survived by his parents, three sisters, Mrs. Albert Blake Williams and Mrs. Nathan C. Starr, of Boston, and Mrs. E. Parrish Lovejoy, of New York, and one brother, John White Howell, Jr.

MARINES SEIZE MANY NICARAGUAN REBELS

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Aug. 13 (AP)—American marines, commanded by Lieut.-Col. Joseph A. Russell, have entered the town of Danli, near the Nicaraguan frontier, and seized several Nicaraguans. The seizure was authorized by Honduras and the newspapers are attacking the government for allowing the entry of American troops.

8 MEXICAN TOWNS ARE DAMAGED BY QUAKES

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 13 (AP)—Dispatches to El Continental say that a series of earthquakes of greater intensity than any felt for some time have caused damage in eight Mexican towns. Five shocks that came early Sunday morning demolished houses at Pinotepa, Pochutla and Putla, according to the dispatches.

Judge Logan fined Kedjerski $100 for eavesdropping and $5 for drunkenness. He appealed and was held in $400 bonds.

San Francisco, Aug. 13 (AP)—A weather forecast today of low humidity and high variable winds offered no encouragement to the hundreds of fire-fighters struggling with forest blazes, which needed only a stiff breeze to be fanned into renewed fury.

In the Stanislaus national forest, the flames have swept over 15,000 acres and menace the Merced Grove of giant redwoods. The supervisor of the area asked for reinforcements to replace 200 exhausted men.

Four other dangerous fires were burning in the State, although all were reported under control. Furnaces and unfavorable weather might scatter the embers and start further conflagration.

Loaf of 6 Experts

ONCE upon a time, as the story goes, six bakers made separate brands of bread famous in six neighboring New England cities. After a while, those six expert bakers became friends because they had the same ideal—to make perfect bread.

They met often, and each time they got together exchanged recipes and their favorite methods. So quite naturally the day came to them. They would make one loaf of bread which would represent the cream of all their combined knowledge and experience and ability.

They would choose the finest ingredients and agree on their making secrets to make this loaf the richest loaf in New England. Today this ideal has been realized in a fragrant, crispcrusted, cream-grained loaf that the most exacting housewife gives her wholehearted praise.

In less than two months this bread became the favorite in 100,000 homes in New England. Nowhere else in the world is there such an appreciation of fine bread as in enjoying life New England. That is why the six bakers take such pride in the success of their loaf.

The richness of the ingredients is in it and the smooth grain and crisp crust which are now admired for the experience of years of making. Housewives notice that their enjoyment on its flavor and the way it cuts in thin, firm slices, without crumbling.

And it is so rich that it keeps fresh for days. The six bakers themselves like it best of all when a fresh clean tea towel wrapped around the bread.

Careful housewives everywhere are glad to give their family a pure, sound bread, knowing that it is made of the same fine quality ingredients that they would use themselves.

Only the best white, sweet flours are used in the kneading of rich milk with all the cream in it, rich shortening. Its crisp crust and soft creamy texture are like the finest of home made bread.

And to keep this loaf "up to snuff," these six expert bakers meet every month to go over their methods, test their loaves and compare new discoveries. And every week loaves go from each of their bakeries to headquarters to be examined for uniformity, which explains why you can always depend upon the perfection of this brand of bread.

In cutting it be sure to cut from the bottom towards the top, commencing on the edge, of course. In this way, the tender, delicate crust is not broken.

All pieces of bread should be saved and utilized, the large pieces for toast. The soft, side bread when crumbled is used for puddings, and the cakes, omelets, scalloped dishes and for dripping foods to be fried.

Remnants of bread with the crust are dried in the oven, rolled and sifted and called dry bread crumbs and are used for stuffing croquettes, cutlets, fish and meats. Cubes of bread, toast points and small oblong pieces are used for garnishing and, of course, we all are familiar with croutons, little squares of bread browned in butter or deep fat and used with creamed soups.

There are endless delicious bread puddings, among them a bread pudding for which I'll be glad to send you the recipe, if you'd like to have it. Chocolate bread pudding is a favorite, too, and then all the other delicious things made from bread, such as bread dressing, scalloped dishes, French toast, cinnamon toast and tomato cream toast. I think I must give you the recipe for this latter.

Tomato Cream Toast—1¼ cups scalded cream, ¼ tsp. soda, 2 tbsps. flour, ½ tsp. salt, 6 slices toast.

Put butter in saucepan; when melted and bubbling, add flour, mixed with salt, and stir in gradually tomato, to which soda has been added, then add cream. Dip slices of toast in sauce. Serve as soon as made.

Hints on Gelatine

MOST school girls and brides start their culinary experience with gelatine dessert—they're so easy to make, so attractive to look at and so appetizing.

The new whipped gelatine, I think, is particularly delicious. It is made in the usual way of adding 1 cup of boiling hot water or fruit juice to a package of gelatine powder, stirring until every bit of the powder is dissolved and then adding 1 cup of cold fruit juice or cold water.

Set the gelatine in the ice chest and when it is cool and still liquid, but just beginning to thicken, whip it until it is like whipped cream. It is best to keep the gelatine cold while whipping by setting the dish in cracked ice, or ice water.

I use an aluminum mixer, never tire of whipping, because being deep, it prevents scattering and the aluminum chill quickly and stay cold. An ordinary package of gelatine powder which usually serves six people will serve from 9 to 12 people in whipped form. Chopped fruits nuts, marshmallows, etc., may be added for variety.

If you wish to place fruit in your gelatine desserts, pour a little of the gelatine first in the bottom of the mold and let it harden, on this arrange your fruit as desired.

Then add carefully enough cold liquid gelatine to hold the fruit in place, but not to cover it. When this has hardened, add more and repeat until gelatine and repeat until your mold is full.

To make fruit stand upright, put enough of the gelatine in the mold to hold the fruit in place and let fall until it is like thick molasses. Now dress the fruit into place and fill the mold with cold liquid gelatine or whipped gelatine.

If you wish to make your gelatine desserts in layers using two flavors, of courses you must let each layer harden before adding another and be sure that the gelatine poured upon the hardened layer is cool enough so that it will not soften the first layer.

To remove gelatine desserts from the mold, dip them all over in a pan filled with lukewarm water. Then place a plate over the mold and turn them over together and give them a little shake. If the gelatine does not loosen the first time, dip it again the second time and don't be afraid to let it "go in all over."

Sitting in Safety

FOR once I'm sitting on the side of safety. I certainly got my two quarts of liquid refreshment and then some, not only painlessly, but with much pleasure through the happy faith in ginger ale—discerning, refreshing, pure and healthful.

Summer and winter there's always a bottle of pale dry on my ice and when bedtime any one who uses that bottle without replacing it from the case under the kitchen table—

For my first trip in the morning is straight to that ice box and a big glass of ginger ale takes the place of the water which should precede the daily dozen. And after nothing through the morning housework previous to departing for the office labor there's a tantalizingly refreshing swallow or two.

Ginger ale is my treasured evening friend, too. It's the solution of the refreshment problem for those guests who, when offered evening coffee, sit between sleep and their hostess and the face of position sleeplessness. So ginger ale in tall thin bottle, iced around. Its in the evening that I really show my ginger-ale talent.

I'm one special combination of fresh pineapple juice, lemon, lime and ginger ale, that always wins me compliments. Then there's orange sherbet and ginger ale, garnished with fresh mint leaves. And sentimental. Punch of grape, orange and lemon juices, sugar and ginger ale thanks hard to beat.

I think I'm becoming truly famous for my Dr. Lucas Cup, a sensational drink particularly delicious in hot weather and ginger ale, not to mention my Shandygaff punch, from hot fresh tea, lemons, sugar and G. A.

Stuffing for Fowl

THE Farmer's Notebook suggests for poultry and vegetables as follows—2 tbsps. cooking fat, 1 medium sized onion, 1 tbsp. prepared mustard, 2 cups bread crumbs, 1 tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. sage, about ¾ cup boiling water.

Heat the fat and in it cook the chopped onion until slightly brown. Add mustard and add to the bread crumbs (the bread should be dried or dried in the oven, and cut quite fine) add salt and a sage and moisten with boiling water.

Stuffing for Vegetables—2 cups chopped meat, 1 medium sized onion chopped fine, 1 tbsp. prepared mustard, about 1 cup boiling water, salt, 1 tbsp. butter.

To the meat add steamed onion and crumbs. Mix the mustard and butter with the boiling water and add; if the crumbs used are dry, a little more water may be needed. Season to taste with salt.

Save the Syrups

FOR summer drinks be sure to use the syrups left over from canned fruits to add a special tang and flavor. Syrups from cherries, pears, peaches, pineapple, prunes and apricots will blend with ginger ale, orange juice, iced tea or any other summer drink to make a delicious beverage or fruit punch.

Every housekeeper uses so much canned fruit for fruit cocktails, salads and desserts that it is always well to keep a fruit jar into which to pour all superfluous fruit syrup. Keep this on ice and tightly sealed until you are ready to use it for fruit drinks.

If you do this, less sugar will be required for these than would otherwise be needed, and the flavor will be enhanced many times.

Here's a Recipe for Delicious Fruit Punch

Fruit Punch—Make a tea infusion with 2 tsps. of tea and 1¼ cups of boiling water. Pour this infusion over 1 cup of sugar and as soon as the sugar is dissolved add ½ cup of orange juice and 1-3 cup lemon juice. Strain this over cracked ice and just before serving add 1 pint of pale dry ginger ale and a few slices of orange.

Crisp Bacon With Pineapple Is Good

Here's a really novel breakfast dish. A splendid substitute for the time worn bacon and eggs. You just fry bacon as usual, pouring off the fat as it forms. Remove to platter. Keep hot. Now season a little flour with salt and pepper and dip slices of pineapple in the flour. Brown in a little very hot bacon fat.

HERE'S something as economical as it is easy to prepare and eat. It is a Shepard's Pie, made from left-over bits of cold lamb, beef or veal.

First put three small onions, sliced, in a wide deep saucepan and place them and a well buttered baking dish. Surround the onions with 1 cup of small bits of cold meat, lamb, beef or veal.

Then make a sauce by melting 2 tbsps. of drippings or other fat and adding 2 tbsps. of flour, ½ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, 1 tbsp. grated onion and 1 tbsp. prepared mustard. Stir until smooth and then add 1 pint of boiling water or stock made with 2 bouillon cubes to a pint and cook for 1 minute.

Pour this sauce around the meat at about not quite cover it. Pile 2 cups of mashed potatoes on top of the meat and bake in a medium oven (350 deg. F.) for 45 minutes. You can increase the heat slightly if necessary to brown the potatoes towards the end of the cooking.

Get Pure Product

TEACHERS of cooking are in the vanguard of wise eating and economical kitchen management in America.

They have as high standards of responsibility to the public as the profession of medicine. They will not use material which they cannot recommend for purity, for ease in use and for food value. In fact, the very act of using a certain food in cooking is itself their full endorsement of its quality.

They know that nothing but the right product will make the demonstration succeed—and their demonstration must not fail.

That is why it is a pretty good safeguard to wise food buying to carefully note the various materials used in the demonstrations in the Martha Lee Kitchen. You can always depend on their quality.

Festive at Dinner

MOCK BISCUIT TORTONI is festive enough to serve for the most formal dinner. It may be moulded in one of the attractive melon moulds or can be poured into custard cups or sherbert glasses. If sherbet glasses are used, the pudding need not be unmolded and can be served in the glasses.

To make this dessert, soak 1 tbsp. of granulated gelatine in ¼ cupful of cold water 10 minutes. Beat 1 egg, add 1-2 cupful of sugar and 1 cupful of hot milk.

Cook in a double boiler stirring constantly until mixture becomes creamy and clings to the spoon. Remove from the fire, add 1 cupful of raisins and the soaked gelatine. Stir until gelatine is dissolved, then turn into a cold bowl and set aside until cold and somewhat thickened.

Then add one cupful of macaroon crumbs, when well mixed, fold in one cupful of whipped cream and 1 tsp. of vanilla flavoring. Turn into molds and set aside in a cool place until needed. To serve, unmold and garnish with sweetened whipped cream.

Ham Baked in Maple Syrup Is Delicious

Place half a ham in cold water, heat slowly and simmer gently allowing 20 minutes to the pound. Remove the rind, cover the fat with cloves and bake one hour in a moderate oven, basting frequently with maple syrup.

Surprise at Supper

IT is sometimes difficult to discover a sufficient variety of simple and flavorful dishes suitable for the supper meal. Cheese is a useful substitute for meat in the preparation of supper and luncheon dishes and the following recipe for Baked Rice Surprise combines this tasteful ingredient in a "filling" but dainty hot dish.

Baked Rice Surprise—2 cups cooked rice, 1 can tomato soup, ¼ pound grated cheese, 1 tablespoon prepared mustard.

Add the prepared mustard to the undiluted tomato soup. Place a layer of rice in the bottom of a baking pan. Follow with a layer of the thick soup, then a layer of grated cream cheese. Repeat until the dish is full, the top layer being cheese. Bake in an oven 15 minutes, or until the top is lightly brown.

Potted Cheese Will Add to the Menu

For picnic sandwich fillings here's an allstar recipe with season's greetings. Melt 1 tbsp. butter. Add ¼ lb. American cheese, cut fine and ¼ tsp. cayenne pepper. Stir until melted. Beat in gradually the yolk of 1 egg slightly beaten and diluted with ¼ c. of cream. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. When smooth set aside to become cold in small jars.

Food Fit for Feast

ONE by one, I find myself buying the same equipment for my home that I enjoy through the day in the Martha Lee Kitchen. My latest treasure is a heavy aluminum Dutch oven. It is truly a perfect utensil for top-stove cookery—for roasting, braising or stewing.

And such a versatile utensil, for it is also very clever at cooking fruits or vegetables (without water if you wish), for deep-fat frying and for making apple butter, candy and other things that burn so easily in ordinary ware.

This up-to-date cooker is really a joy to handle. Although the aluminum is thick, it is very light in weight, not cumbersome at all, and since it is made of hard aluminum, polished to a shining smoothness, it is easy to clean and not harsh to the touch. It's economical, too, both in price and because you buy it for life.

It's surprising what wonders you can do with a Dutch oven and those inexpensive cuts of meat—the rump, the chuck, the flank, the plate—what deliciously tender roasts they turn out to be when your dinner them gently within the thick aluminum walls of this Dutch oven. Let us show you ours the next time you are in the Martha Lee Kitchen.

Fuente's Left Hook Will Bother Maloney

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

SPEED ACCURACY INTEREST NEWS THE DAY IT HAPPENS

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN — MONDAY, AUGUST 13, 1928

LEFT HOOK BAD FOR JIMMY

Peninsula Battler Hopes to Overcome Jinx in Fight at Wigwam

Jimmy Maloney's nemesis punch looms up again to abruptly halt his march back to the top of the fistic heap.

The South Boston heavyweight will be called upon to elude the left hook of Tony Fuente, Mexican giant, when they step into the ring at Braves Field tomorrow night.

If there is a jinx punch in the fistic repertoire which has ruled Maloney more trouble than any other wallop, it's a left hook, and now it has been learned that Fuente depends on a left hook more than any other punch.

Fuente's hook is his ace and it's with this punch that the heavyweight champion of the coast expects to take the measure of the Peninsula boy.

In spite of big gloves and all, Fuente nearly spilled Eddie Callahan to the canvas yesterday with this tremendous hook, and this wallop is expected to keep Maloney at bay throughout the 10-round battle tomorrow night.

FOR some reason, Maloney has been unable to crush fighters with a good left hook. It's been his jinx throughout his ring career.

It was a left hook which Jack Delaney used to topple Maloney to the floor on eight occasions, when they recently met, and while Dynamite Jack finally won the decision in the right, he was dangerously near a knockout on a number of occasions.

Apparently Fuente has heard all about Maloney's weakness against this punch and this is the reason that the olive-skinned invader is developing this wallop to crush the upward march of the South Boston man.

Fuente always has been regarded as a tremendous puncher on the coast. His record of 45 knockouts in 60 bouts testifies to his great punching ability.

No doubt there will be plenty of hard wallops when Maloney and Fuente clash and the fans are anticipating a number of knockdowns, if not a knockout for each man depends on a dangerous right-hand punch to end.

Fuente, who has a wife and child back in Los Angeles, faces his greatest opponent when he meets Maloney here. It will be his first ring appearance in the East and as the fans learn all about him, they are expecting some real action.

FUENTE, no doubt, will have a few pounds on Maloney when they step into the ring for he expects to scale around 200 pounds, while the South Boston man will weigh about 194 pounds.

Together with his long reach and giant proportions, the South Boston man will be forced to overcome a natural handicap.

While the Mexican has impressed Hub fans by his training workouts at Jim Toland's Gymnasium, Maloney continues to train strenuously at Wamesit with four sparring partners providing action for him.

While Maloney has fought better than ever in his career in his last two fights against Jack DeMave and Henry Lomax, this fight with Fuente will provide a real test for him.

Fuente hasn't come to the Hub all the way from the coast, a distance of 3500 miles, without having visions of breaking into the upper crust of the heavyweight ranks in the East. A victory over the local man is sure to put him in line for some big offers.

The secondary ten rounder on the card will offer the fans a glimpse at another pair of hard punching heavyweights. Big Bill Hartwell, 216-pound Kansas City giant, will meet Jake Warren of New York in this battle.

Both men have shown here once before and came off victorious.

WARREN defeated Nando Tassi here while Hartwell stopped Lee Anderson.

Hartwell is regarded as one of the hardest hitters in the game today. He has participated in only 22 bouts but has won 16 of these by the knockout route.

Another eight round heavyweight bout is on the card for Eddie Callahan of Arlington is scheduled to meet Owen Firma of South Boston. There are the most prominent heavies developed here in many years and this fight should be close throughout.

In a six rounder, Phil Flanagan of Malden meets Pat Grant,

Luck Plays Major Role in Golf

By Johnny Farrell

American Open Champion

In any prolonged test of golf like an American open championship the goddess of fortune is certain to enact one of the principal roles.

I do not mean to suggest that a man can gain the summit placing great trust in the wings of chance. All the luck in the world couldn't win one of these razzle-dazzles without complete mental and technical equipment. But it seems to one who has been through the maddening mill that luck sways the scales one way or another.

A player can possess skill to an unusual degree, but without fortune trailing him about he cannot hope for success in major competition. The jesse is ever too close, the contestants too evenly matched in the mechanics of the game for any one to prosper without outside influence.

In the merry-go-round at Olympia Fields I won the championship with 426 strokes, including the two playoff rounds, while Bobby Jones had to be content with second place merely because he required 437 shots.

CERTAIN it was then that along that tortuous trail "breaks," as we so aptly term these capricious acts of chance, favored some more than they did others. Ask anyone of the 145 men who indulged but has won 16 of these by the knockout route.

Another eight round heavyweight bout is on the card for Eddie Callahan of Arlington is scheduled to meet Owen Firma of South Boston. There are the most prominent heavies developed here in many years and this fight should be close throughout.

In a six rounder, Phil Flanagan of Malden meets Pat Grant,

I will illustrate two breaks that enabled both Jones and I to carry on where, if they had been levelled against our progress, they probably would have wrecked us.

Mine came during the struggle over the last nine holes of the championship, the most crucial period in the whole tournament where men's hearts and nerves were breaking under the strain. It was at the fourteenth hole that I nearly passed out. I hooked my drive wickedly and the ball careened into the woods so deeply that it seemed to me as though it must be lost utterly. But the next second it came flying out to drop as nicely as you please onto the fairway.

Now had I been compelled to play that ball out of the forest land I surely would have scored more than the par of four that I eventually did. For though the pellet was still some 300 yards from the green, I spooned it to within 10 yards of it, made a good ditch and dropped a middling putt, thus embracing the good luck that had come to me.

JONES had a similar experience.

At the 18th hole, where he was striving with might and main to crack or tie that total of 294 that I had already posted, he hooked his drive into a rough, a miserable abiding place. His second shot, no poor one in the circumstances, skittered into the ditch that winds across the fairway. Now a ditch usually inflicts a penalty. It is there for no other purpose.

Bobby's ball, escaping the tall waving grass on either bank, came to rest in the middle of the ditch, sitting up prettily. Had it stopped a foot shorter, Bobby couldn't possibly have evaded punishment, but as it so luckily happened, he was able to execute a full shot. And a marvelous shot it was. It came out of the ditch like a bullet, and landed on the green to the amazement of the thousands huddled around it.

Incidents like these happen to all of us and it is of these I speak when I say that the goddess of fortune casts the final vote in a head-to-head competition like an American open championship.

PLOT TO BURN REIGH COUNT FOILED

New York, Aug. 13 (AP)—A Saratoga special to the Evening World says an attempt to destroy by fire the Kentucky Derby winner, Reigh Count, and the Futurity winner, Anita Peabody, was foiled yesterday by watchmen aroused by watchdogs.

Kerosene-soaked cotton was stuffed in cracks, windows and other vantage points of the stables housing the racing strings of Mrs. John D. Hertz and John E. Madden.

The barking of the Hertz stables mascot, a police dog, and of Jim Healy's dog, attracted the Hertz guards, Maddock's negro trainer, Chuck Walker, and the watchman investigated, arriving in time to see two men running from the scene. Investigation disclosed the oil-soaked rags, all ready for a torch.

Besides Reigh Count and Anita Peabody, Mrs. Hertz's recent $23,000 purchase, the filly Nettie Stone, was in the Hertz stables. Scallawag and Nearby were in the Madden barns.

The stables that house the horses of Dr. Cary H. Grayson, Sam Hildreth and strings trained by Woods Garth and James Healy are in the immediate neighborhood.

The Hertz and Madden stables face each other in exclusive Horseshoe section, adjacent to the Oklahoma training course. They are old, wooden structures.

Reigh Count, at this meeting, has won the Miller Stakes. Anita Peabody, winner of the largest amount of prize money last year, has been on the ailing list lately. Mrs. Hertz purchased Nettie Stone recently from Madden.

Heeney's Statement Thrilled Tunney

By Gene Tunney

World's Heavyweight Champion

New York, Aug. 13—The 11th round in the Yankee Stadium placed me in the most difficult position I have ever faced in a ring.

Tom Heeney, gamest of foemen, rushed from his corner in a last despairing effort to win a contest that had been lost beyond recall for fully four rounds.

Less than a minute before Jack had lain quivering under the lower rope at the side of the ring, apparently unconscious and finished for the evening. Heroic work in the minute rest had brought him to the point where he could answer the bell for the 11th round.

More than anything else in ten match I wanted to score a knockout to prove definitely that I could punch as well as box. It could hardly be looked upon as a selfish desire on my part. For months I had known this match to be my last engagement in the ring.

I wanted to leave decently imbedded in the profession that gave me wealth, health and a multitude of fine friends and associations, the impression of power and ability that I felt in me.

In leaving the ring I wished to do so with the memory fresh in my mind and the minds of boxing enthusiasts of the greatest exhibition of my career.

BEFORE me, struggling against odds that would have kept any other man rooted to his chair when the bell sounded to open the final round, was an opponent who had won my respect and admiration.

I knew that his strength was gone that he barely knew where he was. I knew that instinct alone and the fighting heart of a great athlete urged him up from his chair and into the center of the ring.

Unfortunately there is no such thing as pity within the four walls of ropes after the bell has sounded to open a round. The battle then belongs to the spectators. They have paid to see two athletes meet in a contest that is not terminated until one or the other is unable to continue or until the referee raises one hand as the close in token of victory. Two boxers are carrying out a contract without regard for personal feelings or inclination.

Every punch I directed at the challenger in that final round carried the power and intent to knock Heeney out. Under the storm of blows, his strength seeping away so quickly that I could feel him failing in my arms at times, Heeney rapidly approached a state of collapse.

Time and again I smashed punches accurately to vital spots, but he would not go down. Blows that might have knocked him out missed, too, because of my anxiety to end the contest with one punch.

Few of the spectators at the match realize that Heeney landed a blow in the eleventh round. After his first wild dash from the corner, when the punches he did throw went wild or lunged harmlessly against my guard, he saved his strength the better to resist punishment.

He felt like a human punching bag in front of me. I was sick of the task when Ed Forbes finally stepped between us and called a halt. I was glad it was over.

THERE have been thoughts in some minds, perhaps, that Heeney could have continued. Only eight seconds were left in the round. Even though Tom had fallen the bell again would have saved him from a knockout. To continue such a hopeless match, to allow a man to risk permanent injury because he does not know when he is beaten would have been cruel and inhuman. Forbes did the proper thing.

When the referee stepped the contest my first thought was of Heeney's condition. I threw one arm around his shoulders and started to help him across the ring to his own corner. His seconds rushed across to take him away.

Dimly realizing what had happened, Heeney turned his bloody, smeared face to me and gave me one of the greatest thrills I have ever experienced in 10 years of boxing.

"God bless you, Gene," he said. "You're a great champion." Then he stumbled away.

As he turned I thanked him, told him what a courageous fight I thought he had made and wished him all the luck in the world in the future. A few words over the radio and I left the ring for the last time, never to enter it again.

WORLD'S SERIES STARTS ON OCTOBER 3

New York, Aug. 13 (AP)—The World Series, blue ribbon classic of professional baseball, will open Oct. 3, but just where remains in the hands of the gods.

Under the existing circumstances, however, the first game of the fall series can open only at one of two cities—New York or Philadelphia.

Under the alternation rule, put into the books by the late Charles H. Ebbets, the series this year will open on the grounds of the club winning the American League championship.

The New York Yankees and Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, alone of the field in the American League have a chance of winning the 1928 title.

The St. Louis Browns, in third place, are 19 games distant from the leading Yankees, and thus are out of the running.

The schedule of dates, agreed upon last week by officials of clubs concerned in the series, calls for games in the American League park on Wednesday and Thursday, October 3 and 4, with a day's rest, if a traveled before the scene shifts to the National League ground, which will mark if a western team captures the title in John Heydler's circuit.

If the championship lies between two eastern clubs the series will continue through without a break, starting October 3.

Carrigan Expects to Start Big Griffin While Indians Are Present

By NICK FLATLEY

THE Red Sox take up the cudgels against the West this afternoon. The armed Yankees have departed to be seen no more this year, and for the next two weeks the Carrigans will face clubs more or less in their own class.

ROGER PECK'S Cleveland Indians open the Western invasion and Braves ground Sox fans there will be no double headers, unless showers put any postponements up for grabs. The Indians are the hardest team to win from. In most big games with Cleveland pitching staff is strong, and most of the regulars are run-ners. A couple of normal positions will restore the trio and the infield to the ball team, which Carrigan still expects to emerge from the league cellar.

Nick Flately

MANAGER WILLIAM isn't as down hearted as he might be. He is willing to forget the recent York series. The champions came to this town more from the Athletics got beaty. This cut loose and the Red Sox were famously enough to finish the week.

Competition with the Western clubs will be a lot easier. The White Sox are the only ones playing good baseball, but the Indians and the Browns have been playing well. Any kind of a victory run will put the native Sox back on their feet.

Phil Todt expects to be back in the game within a day or two. Phil's injured knee is still painful, and in the interest will help things in the Lineup if he can't use it. He hasn't had enough first base experience to shine at the job.

MOST of the Carrigan pitchers looked good in spots against the Yanks. Rotting should have been the ball game, and both Morris and MacFayden did a lot of good work—New York or Philadelphia, struck them loose. The same sort of chucking will win plenty of ball games against the West. Hugo Bezdek Griffin will get a chance in this Indian series.

"He's a big boy," says Carrigan, "and he can put a lot on that baseball. He has had experience and looks naturally to be a good breaking in. He gets the ball very when he wants it, and may become quite a pitcher. Those big chaps all have a chance."

Maybe may get his shot this afternoon, if Bill decides that Ed Morris needs another day of rest.

THE Yanks, who have now won five straight and not any too in their own ball yards, seem to have recovered their punch and stamina. They were slowly wearing away at the Athletics' lead, and when they left.

There's been a load of five games on the Athletics' lead, and the Yanks trying for a month to cut it down to one. They've cut it down to one and a half, and may be able to carry the war about until next month when they have a chance to meet with the champs. This may be the big skirmish of the year.

Duffy Lewis and 3 Players Fined

(AP)—Manager Duffy Lewis of the Portland club has been fined $25 and indefinitely suspended, and three of his players fined $10 each as a result of their part in a disturbance during the first game of Portland doubleheader at Haverhill Saturday. President Claude Davidson of the New England Baseball League, announced today.

Players Reid, Saunders and Bradshaw were the other men fined.

Lewis, former Red Sox star, and his players protested a decision. A disturbance started which ended in the police leading the Portland players from the field and the second game of the doubleheader being forfeited to Haverhill.

Sharkey Fights Peterson at Fenway Next Week!

LOCAL MAN FAVORED TO WIN

First Boston Appearance in Two Years for Sharkey

Jack Sharkey, uncrowned heavyweight champion of the world, will make his first Boston appearance in almost two years at Fenway Park one week from Thursday night. He will box Big Boy Peterson of Minneapolis in the 10-round feature bout of the Arena A. C.

On his last appearance here—in September, 1926,—Sharkey started on his march to fame and fortune by whipping big George Godfrey at Mechanics Building.

Since then, he has whipped Harry Wills, knocked out Mike McTigue and stood toe to toe with Jack Dempsey in a great battle.

The Sharkey of today is a national figure.

Only last week, a Cleveland paper conducted a poll of expert opinion that reached into every part of the country in order to find a successor for Tunney, and that poll dictated Jack Sharkey's billing far out in front, with Tommy Loughran and John Risko many a step behind.

SHARKEY today is the outstanding figure in all the boxing world.

Since Tunney retired, he has received tons of publicity in all the papers of the country, and with the road to the title wide open to him, he intends to meet every big man of any pretensions in the country.

Only last week, John Risko, who is to box Roberto Roberti in Brooklyn Wednesday night, refused to sign a contract to box Sharkey, making Mr. Sharkey's claim to the title even more solid than it had previously been.

His campaign will start right in his own back yard, in the most attractive match arranged for a Boston ring in many years.

His opponent will be no undecided, inexperienced heavyweight, as Big Boy Peterson is just as big as Sharkey and he proved to Boston fans by outpointing Leo Schast in a slithering battle that he is game enough and fast enough to battle Sharkey down to the finish line.

Sharkey is to receive a guarantee of $15,000 and a privilege of 40 per cent of the gate receipts, the largest sum ever guaranteed any boxer in the history of the New England ring, and Col. Bob McKirdy is content to pay that purse, for he feels that the show will break all records for attendance and receipts in Boston.

SHARKEY is training at Stillman's Gymnasium in New York, the lucky spot at which he trained for so many of his fights in the big city.

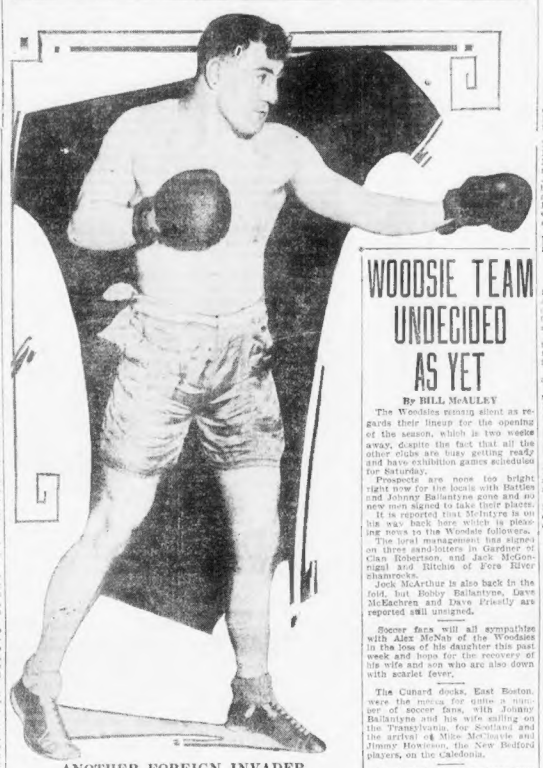
Peterson, already in light training in Minneapolis, will arrive here Thursday, a week before the bout, to finish his training on the scene of the battle.

Despite the attractiveness of the bout, it was announced that popular prices will prevail.

Tickets may be secured at the Arena A. C. office, 333 Washington st., room 315, at the regular prices of $3, $2, $1.50 and $1.

Reservations may be made by telephoning Liberty 8797 and Hubbard 4642.

AFTER GENE'S VALUABLE CROWN



ANOTHER FOREIGN INVADER

Con O'Kelly, heavyweight champion of Ireland, will soon fight in this country. He has a great record in the ring. Con may be the one to capture the title abandoned by Gene Tunney. He thinks it would look well on his handsome head.

Close Games Feature Week-End Football

Two exciting football contests were staged by the Gardo Athletic Association at Columbus Park South Boston Worcester defeating Rowcomwen, 5 to 4, and Mayo and Norwood battling to a 6-6 tie.

The games were fast and exciting an t replete with brilliant plays.

The defeat of Roscommon by Worcester was a surprise, for the former was favored to win.

The game was bitterly contested, with the Worcester team having a slight edge through the fine combination in the attack.

The Mayo and Norwood tilt was the better contest, with the Mayo team gaining a six-point lead over their opponents before the latter counted.

Then the Norwood lads staged a rally that brought the game even, scoring a goal and three points late in the second period.

CHICAGO-WISCONSIN TO CLOSE AT RANDALL STADIUM

Madison Wis., Aug. 13—The homecoming game on November 10 between the University of Chicago eleven and Wisconsin, at Camp Randall stadium, will be the first appearance of the Maroons in Madison since 1916.

The Badgers have been closing the season each fall at Stagg Field, but at the culmination of their five-year contract a year go, a home and home agreement was made.

Right Club Should Be Used for Each Shot

By MIRIAM BURNS HORN
National Golf Champion

ALTHOUGH the fault of overclubbing is not so common, particularly among the better golfers, yet it does exist, and is more or less noticeable with the beginning classes.

It is the result of lack of the same confidence in all the clubs, and a decided preference to one, although it is not the correct one to use in the place.

I know this to be a fact, because how common is the remark "Oh, I can't use my midiron, I'd better take a spoon."

And so on with all the clubs. It is an interesting experience to me to watch beginners teeing off on a short hole. They use everything from a driver to a mashie dopeding upon what they are the most sure of, and the one with which they can obtain the most certain results.

IN their minds it is only the results that matter, rather than perfecting their games, and working out all the clubs together.

Overclubbing is equally as bad as its opposite, under-clubbing. There is a club for every shot, nor do I approve of varying much from this.

For instance, for a distance of 140 yards, it is not wise to use a spoon, putting no force into the shot, just because one likes the club, and can manage it well.

Take the proper club, an iron of some sort, and above all, play the stroke firmly. I do not mean to say that everyone can obtain the same distance with every club. That is to be determined with the individual.

But I do say not to play weak characterless shots.

A half shot with a mashie iron is perfectly correct, and appropriate, if one cares to play such, and "knows what it is all about."

But a half shot does not mean a full swing, which results in a sway at the ball, and only half one's concentration or power.

For some reason or other most women beginners' conception of a short approach is less power. It seems, for the benefit of those who really need instructions in golf, one cannot say too often—make every shot a firm one.

ON a pitch of only twenty yards, take the club back just the same as for a full one. The difference in distance will be regulated by the position of one's hands on the shaft.

Holding at the bottom of the leather, it would be impossible to go very far.

And just as unreasonable it would be to take a full swing, gripping at the end of the club, in the hope of successfully going only a few yards. It cannot be done.

Nothing is more ungraceful or awkward than lack of control. Not knowing how to execute one's clubs is exactly that.

One may miss shots either occasionally or frequently, but at least it is pardonable provided they are attempted in the proper manner.

Do not favor one club. Give them all a chance, and do not overclub. Taking an easy wood where the situation calls for an iron looks far worse than falling short.

Do not misunderstand me—this advice is not for one who knows all the tricks with every club.

It is for the one who is uncertain of herself, and hesitates in making the important decisions.

WOODSIE TEAM UNDECIDED AS YET

By BILL McAULEY

The Woodsies remain silent as regards their lineup for the opening of the season, which is two weeks away, despite the fact that all the other clubs are busy getting ready and have exhibition games scheduled for Saturday.

Prospects are none too bright right now for the locals with Battles and Johnny Ballantyne gone and no new men signed to take their places.

It is reported that McIntyre is on his way back here which is pleasing news to the Woodsie followers.

The local management has signed on three sand-hitters in Gardner of Clan Robertson, and Jack McConnigal and Ritchie of Fore River shamrocks.

Jock McArthur is also back in the fold, but Bobby Ballantyne, Dave McEachren and Dave Priestly are reported still unsigned.

Soccer fans will all sympathize with Alex McNab of the Woodsies in the loss of his daughter this past week and hope for the recovery of his wife and son who are also down with typhoid fever.

The Cunard docks, East Boston, were the mecca for quite a number of soccer fans, with Johnny Ballantyne and his wife sailing on the Transylvania, for Scotland and the arrival of Mike McClusie and Jimmy Howieson, the New Bedford players, on the Caledonia.

Howieson is the new player from Hull City and looks like a good prospect for the Whalers, being built on sturdy lines. McCleave is returning after a vacation in Scotland, and he looks ready for another strenuous season.

WOOD'S NEW RACER SINKS

Algonac, Mich., Aug. 13 (INS)—Miss America VI, Gar Wood's newest and most powerful speed boat, built to defend the Harmsworth Trophy, was in ruins in the North Channel of the St. Clair river today.

The boat split to pieces while traveling at a speed Wood estimated to be the fastest any hydroplane and ever done.

Wood was at the wheel. He was not injured. His mechanic, Orla Johnson, was thrown against the cabins, tipes and badly hurt.

The engines and a considerable part of the boat sank. The Miss America VI was launched Saturday and the accident occured on her second trial run.

The boat was the most powerful Hydroplane ever built and was constructed with the idea of breaking the present world's speed record of 80.57 miles per hour made by Wood in 1921 with the Miss America II.

The force of being driven through the water caused the hull to splinter. It crumbled to pieces in an instant and cast both men into the water.

Erne Battles Morrison at Fort

Frankie Erne, of Medford, faces Tommy Morrison of Somerville next Thursday night at Fort Banks, Winthrop, in the feature bout of eight rounds and it is expected that they will provide one of the best lightweight battles of the season.

For the six-round semifinal Capt. Lowry, athletic director at the fort, has engaged Dick Powell, Y. D. champion, to meet Louis Zizzo, of Revere.

There will also be three six and two four round preliminary bouts in the card which Corporal Hoskins coaches with Sailor Flint, U. S. S. Beale, a lightweight bout that should provide action, and in another six, Al Sacco, Boston, meets Jack Palmer, Coast Guard.

In the first six of the evening, Johnny Hanlon, Lynn, faces Jackie Lawless, M. N. G., and in two four rounders, Pat Flaherty, Coast Guard, meets Dusty Smith, Winthrop and Joe Parker, M. N. G., will have it out with Buster Collins, Revere.

Navy Football Team to Start Off Early

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 13—Football for 1928 sounded its first note at the academy when several of the varsity squad, who have been released from further work with the practice squadron, passed through Annapolis.

These players proceeded directly to their homes and will report at the Naval Academy on August 30 for preliminary practice.

Assistant Coach Edgar Rip Miller also arrived in Annapolis yesterday.

Commander Jones H. Ingram, director of football, and Lieut. John Peckett, who with Miller is to coach the line candidates, already are here.

BEAUMONT STRENGTHENED BY BAGWELL AND KIRKHAM

Beaumont, Texas, Aug. 13—The Beaumont Exporters are assembling again for a drive in the second half race.

Outfielder Bill Bagwell, who once had a trial in the majors because of his thundering hits, has come over to the Shippers from Monroe of the Cotton States League.

Jim Maloney, local heavy, is on his way up in the standing among the big boxers.

BOL D'OR CYCLE RACE SET FOR WEDNESDAY

The famous Olympic motor-paced race, the Bol d'Or, postponed Saturday night because of the rain, will be run off in the afternoon Wednesday at the Revere track.

Manager Nat Butler had the biggest card of the season arranged for last Saturday. Two goes for Wednesday night's race meet.

Seven riders will battle in the classic, which will last more than an hour, probably an hour and 10 or 11 minutes.

With Francesco Zucchetti, the champion of the Golden Wheel and the Olympic championship, held last week; George Chapman, who rode as if possessed of a desire to catch him; Francis Beenan, who led almost until the finish; Larry Gaffney, Leo Piccirillo, Joseph Mascenia and Henry Wenshau all starting the contest should furnish plenty of thrills.

It will be Beenan's first appearance of the season at the bowl.

Keenan is now the prom favorite with his long track help, although Chapman is probably Keen's choice after he watches Saturday's card of the horse theater. Anthony Beckman and Pierre Dupuy as starters in a special sprint match race, the midweek race patrons will have plenty to talk about as the three stars will ride both and decide the winner on a point system.

JOLLY ROGER TO HAVE JOCKEY VINCE POWERS UP

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 13—Vince Powers, it is understood, will pilot Jolly Roger through the field in his next appearance next week.

Powers has ridden Jolly Roger fine during recent weeks, and it is quite probable he, as Jolly Vince is usually on the mount of a contest.

MILD they certainly are, and what's more, they SATISFY.

CAPE EXCITED BY RAIDS ON 20 PLACES

Provincetown, Aug. 13—The wealthy Cape wine and gin bellies following weekend visits who used Dry Dock charter in Truro with 20 pints were "rousted" by State troopers.

It is the first time in many years assembled their residences were found to this town. After summoning 14 to court on the Lower Cape, the raiding squad rushed northward and down on this community's most dear neighbors, who were enjoying a day's diversion of 25 pints and only one quarter.

At the home of Joseph Cabral of North Truro the troopers seized four gallons of gin and two quarts of Scotch liquor. Cabral was expected to be summoned to court today.

This "visit" has its humorous side. When the troopers, accompanied by Customs Inspectors Flagg and Hall of New Bedford, appeared, they found seated at a table in the dwelling three Germans, disguised as gentlemen.

The trio had motored over from Provincetown.

"They're looking for beer to quench their thirst," the troopers say they were informed.

"We'll make sure," said the Hun-like Cabral, and then they took a whiff from the extended mouth of the jug. "These belong to Schmidlapp," announcing for the diagnosis, the yachtsmen were permitted to depart.

WALSH, DANIELS AND GEORGE TO VISIT SMITH

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 13 (AP)—In a series of conferences that may have far-reaching political effects, Democratic party leaders before the end of the week to discuss the farcical farm situation here with a group of farm leaders and to talk over the presidential campaign with three men high in Democratic party councils, Senator David A. Walsh of Massachusetts, Senator Walter F. George of Georgia, and Joseph Daniels, secretary of the navy under President Wilson.

The farm delegation, headed by George N. Peek of Illinois, who ran Governor Smith's campaign in that state, was to arrive in Albany today for its meeting with the statesmen.

During the Wednesday meeting Thursday the Walsh party will be coming at the Governor's invitation. It is reported that Governor Smith, before he takes the stump, will confer with other party leaders who were in the field against him for the Democratic nomination—Senator Walsh of Montana, Governor Hitchcock of Nebraska, Hull of Tennessee and others.

Mr. Daniels has been Boss of Missouri and Ritchie of Maryland, both of whom have promised to do what they can to advance his cause.

Straton Calls Off Debate With Smith in Church

New York, Aug. 13 (AP) — The Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, minister of Calvary Baptist Church, refused to meet Governor Smith in debate in his church on the ground that the subject is no place for political discussion.

Smith had asked to be allowed to defend himself there from the attack Dr. Straton made on him from the pulpit of Calvary a week ago in which the governor was called "the deadliest foe of moral progress in the country."

Dr. Straton's refusal to meet the Governor in debate in Calvary was made in a statement read in Calvary by his son, the Rev. Hillyer Straton of Philadelphia.

"I stand ready to meet the Governor at any time, except the Lord's Day, and in any suitable place," Dr. Straton wrote, "and I sincerely hope that he may be led to raise my acceptance of his challenge at no fine value."

Strange traced the odor of gas to the laundry, and forced the transom, to be met by a flood of the poisonous vapor. With the aid of two other officers, he climbed through the transom.

HOOVER PLANS NEW SPEECHES ON DRY LAW

Stanford University, Cal., Aug. 13 (AP)—Herbert Hoover, his campaign in earnest early in September, has decided that the Republican party will include prohibition, farm relief, foreign affairs and development of natural resources.

While the candidate has not disclosed the line he will take in attacking the Democratic stand on wet and dry question, confidential advisers have asserted he will make clear his position and that the searching investigation he proposes in the speech will extend to the subject of "wet" and "dry" laws as well as the matters which have surrounded its enforcement.

In his address, likely to be delivered at a home-coming celebration in Los Angeles early in September, he will touch again on development of water resources and probably will speak briefly regarding the Boulder Canyon dam project.

Hoover's views as to farm relief are known, but in his speech he will not make it his birthday at West Branch, Ia., on the evening of Aug. 10.

He will motor to Cedar Rapids for one day of conferences with Warren G. Harding's friends, but will not attend any county fair and picnic.

Owen Deplores Calling Tammany "Catholic"

Washington, Aug. 13 (INS)—Former senator Robert L. Owen, who recently threw over the Democratic ticket to support Herbert Hoover today denied his opposition to Governor Al Smith for President was based on religious grounds.

"I have never referred 'Tammany as the Catholic'," he said in a statement issued at the Republican headquarters of New Jersey. "I am notorious by talent but I do not approve the organization of political appeal to American Catholics on the ground that Tammany is Catholic and urging them to support it."

"It seems the death or political debauchy for machine politicians to call behind the flag of Christ and use the robes of his self-sacrificing ministers with which to entice the honest, patriotic and faithful children of the church."

MILLS REOPEN IN FALL RIVER; NO PICKETING

Fall River, Aug. 13 (AP)—An immediate effort of the textile mills committee to strengthen its picket lines at the three mills which reopened today, developed in the city failed to materialize today. There was no picketing reported during the night.

Two of the plants, the Algonquin mills and the finishing department of the American printing plant, which had been largely shut down as a result of workers in some departments refusing to cross picket lines, were reopened on a normal basis today. Mill officials reported that enough workers were on hand to fill all jobs.

The Algonquin mills, the third plant where a strike was declared, was operating as usual.

The Durfee mill No. 2 mill which had been closed since September 1 as a result of a strike, also was operating today and officials said plenty of workers were available.

In Taunton Peter Travilla, a strike leader, was fined $20 and sentenced to six months in the House of Correction for picketing without a permit. He appealed and was held in $1,000 and ordered to furnish an additional $1,000 cash bond to keep the peace for six months.

Three of four strike leaders given similar sentences Saturday had been unable to obtain bail today. They are Samuel Weisman, William Soroka and Jack Rubenstein.

Shopping with Priscilla Price

Dearest Anne:

Do you remember the "make-believe" games we played when we were little girls? What fun we used to have.

Today we are going to play a "grown-up" game as we make our tour of the shops and instead of just buying the alluring dainty things that we see, let's bring each and every one of them when they are actually being worn by some of our pals.

We'll think of the most fetching, carefree dresses worn by Beth, Mabey and Celia on wind-swept summer sands and on clear and bright days when gay prints will fill the room like vivid hues of autumn leaves.

We'll watch a permanent wave from each of the famous methods gracing one of our particular friend's fair head, a regular type from the "Rosebud Garden of Girls."

And even in this mid-summer season we can, in our imaginative make-believe game visualize "King Winter" sweeping down from the North in his sleigh of snow to make glad the hearts of those who have been wise enough to purchase a warm, chic outfit for cool during the August Sales.

So let's adventure together about the happy land of "Priscilla-Anne" dreams come true.

I Just Must Have

Such waves I have never seen, and this process does not harm delicate shades of hair. Muscle Oil, priced at $1.50 a bottle is a boon to the woman whose muscles have started to sag, for it will give them strength and her face exquisite contour if patted on each night. This is such a nice shop!

There Are Advantages

in buying your coat at the Largest Fur Establishment in New England, Scott Furriers, Inc., at 63 Summer St. First they give you a good allowance for your old coat when you buy a new one. Alterations are free, which is a decided help. When paying for your coat you may, by making a small deposit, become a member of the Unique Fur Club and make further payments when convenient. No compulsory amounts are required and you do not have to make payments at specified periods. Furthermore, if you are unable to meet your payments they are pleased to wait until it is easy for you to do so. You can make small weekly or monthly payments while you wear your coat and your dealings are absolutely confidential. It is well now to take advantage of their great August Fur Sale with low prices on Hudson Seals (Dyed Muskrat), Squirrels, Raccoons, Opossums and many others. The prices range from $96 to $356. This great sale is an outstanding event in New England. People come from far and near to take advantage of fine furs and unique features at this well-known store. You can't go wrong if you buy your coat at Scott Furriers!

It's a Real Art

my Anne, to buy your clothes to match the seasons. Did you ever know anyone who knew how to do just that in such absolute perfection as our Celia? If you could but peek into the scented depths of the chest where she keeps her lovely "undies" you'd know that it was August, for she has a supply of those pure Japan glove silk mesh undies that are too lovely and too sheer to describe. I can only think of cloth made on the looms of fairies when I see them, pinky soft and cool as morning winds. The shirts are priced at $1.65 and the panties or bloomers at $2.50. They are made of the best grade of silk and you'd love the crinkly exquisite feeling of them next your skin. The bloomers and step-ins have reinforced seats and the step-ins are made with that popular, right-fitting yoke front. They come in the softest pink so fine and gorgeous that they would remind you when you see a lot of them together of floating rosy clouds. It's economical to invest in them, too, for they wear very well indeed, as pure silk always does, and they launder easily and dry in almost as short a time as it takes to tell about it. Of course you've guessed, you'll find them in the Knitted Underwear Department, First Floor, of Filene's.

The Spanish Galleries

of Chandler & Co., Tremont Street at West, have my entire approval when it comes to the buying of furs, for if you desire real good bargains I think you could do better than to take a trip down the stairs with the red carpet. I'd rather like you to have a lamb coat, for they are such "sportsy" looking coats, with their smart leather belts and their swanky models. They are priced at $75. Pony coats, particularly designed for the modern girls are priced at $89 and up to $195. They are silk lined, in attractive soft shades. Muskrat coats, some with fox collars, are priced at $159 and $175. I rather fancy the sealine coats dyed rabbit with the dyed squirrel or natural squirrel collars, but because you are fond of Fitch perhaps you'd like those best with Fitch trimmings. These are satin lined, and priced from $119.50 to $195. I lingered long at the rack which held the Tropical Seal coats, for somehow I seemed to see them as they were when they were really seals and not made into coats. They are most attractive, and priced from $135 to $225. Furs at Chandler's are always worth your consideration!

"Silver Threads Among The Gold"

so sweet in song and story adding their dignified charm as "Father Time" approaches are not as a rule desired by the modern woman. For she goes to business, to clubs, and keeps so much in the public eye with her new freedom that she does want to keep intact her dusky or golden locks as the case may be. So she wisely makes a visit to the S. S. Pierce Company at 63 Tremont st., to purchase a bottle of Ann J. MacHale Hair Color Restorer, that magic preparation which restores the color of her hair and brings out hidden lights of the charm that have disappeared when her hair began to fade. It is not a dye and is compounded for the modern fastidious woman. It is priced at $1 a bottle. Res-Viv strengthens the tissues and is made of bland oil, rich in tissue building constituents. It is also priced at $1 a bottle. For the small price of 75c milady may purchase a jar of Cuticle Ice, a matchless cream for the cuticle and nails, which removes painful cutis. This is also good at this time of year to use as a salve for tired, sore and dry feet. Cuti-Tone indeed deserves its name "Witch Wash," for it has the magic power of witches to tighten loose and flabby skin, act as an astringent, and give you a gorgeous complexion. Ann MacHale products are very fine indeed!

When Day is Done

and it's time for the sand man to come wending his way down from the realms of "Sleepytown," Beth always says, "I'd rather sleep in my own bed than any more else in the world, for it's such a comfortable bed. Priscilla." It's Windsor style metal bed priced at $22.50, graceful and inviting to look upon, completed with spring, moulded tubing and turned fillets. It comes in single size in rich walnut, mahogany or soft ivory finish. There are all sorts of real good bargains in beds, twin size or full size, at the annual August Furniture Sale of Jordan Marsh Company, the greatest sale in their history.

Sweeping Along

on a rousing tide as only it could at Evelyn's, 8 Winter St., third floor, her Midsummer Clearance Sale is bringing happy results for those wise people who make her a visit to replenish their summer frocks. Every dress in her shop, including colorful rajahs, sleeveless, or course, gorgettes, crepes, and summer silks, is priced at $6.95 and $9.95. They come in broken sizes and colors, but you're sure to be suited. Smart, alluring and exquisite are the frocks for fall that are beginning to find their place, priced at $12.95 and up. The Frederics Vita Tonic Compound method is always popular, as is the Nestle Circline or Eugene. You may have a large deep, loose or tight marcel permanent with Mae Murray curls wrapped for ringlet ends. You'll find the operators most expert and they do gray, bleached or dyed hair successfully. ADOPTED CHILDREN

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

IN A very happy little home where there seemed no hope of children, the husband and wife decided to adopt an adorably chubby girl aged three months. From the moment of her advent into the home, the mother pondered over the knowledge which must some day come to the child—that she was not the flesh-and-blood child of the family.

Very wisely, she early decided to meet the problem with absolute truth, and even before the baby could walk or talk she addressed her as "my little chosen child," and referred to the baby in her presence as "our little adopted girl." The word had no mystifying effect upon the tiny girl because she heard it from the time she heard anything consciously.

As she grew older and played with other children the inevitable happened. One of them boasted that he really belonged to his father and mother, but that wee Celeste was adopted. Immediately she ran into the house and questioned the mother.

"Of course, dear," replied the mother. "Haven't I always called you my adopted baby, my chosen child?" Celeste nodded, but what did it mean, really? So, taking the lovely little girl upon her lap, the mother said: "You see, God sends babies to some mothers and fathers, but to some He doesn't send them; so these have to go out and find a baby for themselves, and the baby they find is an adopted baby.

"When the babies are sent to the parents, they sometimes cannot afford to keep them and feed and clothe them as they should be fed and clothed, so the mothers and fathers who are looking for a baby for their home, take these little people and adopt them for their very own. They are the little chosen children. You see, Daddy and I looked at hundreds of little babies before we found you. We saw boy babies and girl babies, blue-eyed and brown-eyed babies, but the minute we saw you we knew you were our own baby to adopt, so we chose you out of all the rest. Wasn't that lovely that we loved you like that, and that we have loved you more every day since we've had you for our very own?"

The tiny girl, in place of being disillusioned about her origin, took great pride in telling people that she was an adopted baby, chosen from hundreds of others. The mother had not deceived her for a moment, but had made it a beautiful situation, which it always is when two people take the child of some one else and love and nurture it as their own.

On the other hand, I have seen a boy grow to manhood believing himself to be the child of his parents, then discovering the truth, only to leave home without a word, the fruits of years of loving service turning to ashes before the wonderful two people who had been father and mother to him all of his life. Yet, in our pity for them, there must be some for the boy, too, who, deceived in the most vital relationship of a child, that of his parentage, flings himself out into the world, with no faith in what anyone tells him, no faith in humanity, possibly no faith even in God.

It is not that the young man does not appreciate the sacrifices of his foster parents, but he resents the fact that they had not the faith to confide in him. The unity is broken and nothing can ever mend it.

Adopting a child is such a laudable, worthwhile act, that it should never be jeopardized by a moment's untruth about it to anyone.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE one infallible way to win a man's admiration, if not his heart, is to ask him for his ADVICE.

It's like feeding peanuts to the circus elephant. You can't overdo it—and they DO love it so!

* * *

Beg him to explain the farm-relief bill to you, or persuade him to help you mould your political opinions. Ask him to help you pick out your new car, or tell him that you have a queer headache and let him prescribe for it. Let him "tell you all about" something, no matter how much you know about it! It always works!

* * *

After that, there is nothing more to do except tie the ribbons on his leash and teach him to catch bonbons on his nose.

* * *

There is nothing on earth that a man prizes so highly and cherishes so devoutly as his own counsel! You may scorn his love, trample on his heart and outrage his Victorian notions of propriety—but beware how you trifle with his "advice."

* * *

As long as you remember his wise and wonderful counsels, to "hold them sacred," you are on the safe side of his friendship, and on the right road to his heart.

* * *

Even a waiter melts and becomes human, when you look up at him confidently and inquire, "What would YOU advise me to order, Francois? YOU always know what's best!"

* * *

And if you want a nice, safe, smooth ride in a taxi, don't start by telling the taxi-driver to take you through Maple st. and up the boulevard. Win his mercy and approval, first, by asking him what he THINKS of the Maple st. route.

* * *

The average woman spends at least one-quarter of her life in listening to masculine "suggestions." If she should carry around all the gratuitous advice she receives, she would have to pay excess baggage, wherever she went.

* * *

Telling a woman how to do things is an ingrowing weakness in the masculine make-up. Whether it's about cooking, finance, carpentry or philosophy, ALL men have wonderful judgment! Ask them.

* * *

You may question a man's sincerity, doubt his veracity, argue about his religion and even disapprove of his politics—but never question his JUDGMENT!

* * *

A woman doesn't have to "take anything" from the men she marries, these days—not even his name or his money or his family crest.

* * *

But if she wants to live happily and serenely with him, she had better take his ADVICE. Take it—and LIKE it!

* * *

It's the shortest cut to domestic tranquility and personal popularity.

Down in Monmouth, Me., at Highmoor Farm, run by the State, a quest is going on which might be described as a quest for a "state statistician." Highmoor is the penitentiary farm.

Highmoor tells one "For many years there has been a demand for a new system of agricultural statistics adapted to Maine. In our climate the Baldwin is likely to winterkill and although it does not follow that it is necessary for the dessert grade Baldwin of the future to be grade apples not hardy or do not color well here. The McIntosh apple is by all odds the most popular grade grown in New England. It is unexcelled in quality and color, especially as to Dairy Ration, and it is a good seller but it is difficult to keep it free from apple scab, the fruit does not hang on the tree well, it is tender and to common storage will not keep late in the winter.

"We need a new variety which possesses the excellent quality of the fruit of the McIntosh, but which is resistant to scab and will keep later in storage. Such a variety is found in numerous crosses have been made between McIntosh and other varieties, particularly the Spy and Golden Delicious. Since apples do not breed true from seeds it is difficult to predict the results of these crosses. Seedlings from most apple varieties bear poor fruit. The McIntosh, however, produces a large proportion of good seedlings. Although only a few of the seedlings are ever exactly alike. The hybrid seedlings are grown for several years and when large enough scions are cut from these seedlings and grafted into mature trees to hasten the time of bearing."

In 1870 there was born in Dover, N. H., a young man who, like numerous other Dovorites, was destined to make his mark in the world non-erasable. He was Jeremiah

Junius S. Morgan Jeremiah Smith

Smith, Jr., former Boston lawyer, who "doctored" Hungary's financial system so effectively that the Hungarian parliament referred to him as "the savior of our country." Then he turned back to Hungary the whole $60,000 left from his two years' salary after payment of his staff and other expenses. Later he also helped to organize the Chinese consortium and helped Austria in adjustment of its national debt. Mr. Smith is again on the high seas, to attend the executive session of the League of Nations in Geneva. With him on the steamship is Junius Spencer Morgan, Jr.

Junius Spencer Morgan, partner of the house of Morgan & Son of N. Y., was elected a director of General Motors Corp. and a member of the finance committee thereof which John J. Raskob recently resigned about three years ago. This was young Morgan's first appointment to an important industrial directorate. When he was attending Harvard back in 1914 it is interested to recall that he was a classmate of many of the Morgan millions, Junius Spencer Morgan, 2nd. Junius is an automobile, though he sometimes hired one.

Subsidiary of International Paper, of which Archibald R. Graustein, former Boston lawyer, is president, submits the lowest bid for supplying Uncle Sam with a standard envelopes for four years, beginning Jan. 1, 1929. The bid was 22 per cent lower than the current contract. About $3,000,000 would be saved to the government without the aid of Postmaster General Harry S. New, best of all, could be passed along to the public. Business men, the huge est consumers of stamped envelopes would be specially benefited.

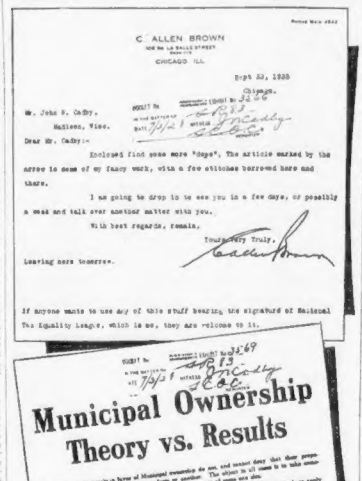
A Bit of 'Fancy Work'



C. ALLEN BROWN
100 SO. LA SALLE STREET
CHICAGO ILL.

Sept 10, 1928

Chicago.

Mr. John S. Cadby,
Madison, Wisc.

Dear Mr. Cadby:-

Enclosed find some more "dope". The article marked by the arrow is some of my fancy work, with a few stitches borrowed here and there.

I am going to drop in to see you in a few days, or possibly a week and talk over another matter with you.

With best regards, remain,

Yours very Truly,

Leaving here tomorrow.

If anyone wants to use any of this stuff bearing the signature of National Equality League, which is we, they are welcome to it.

NATIONAL EQUALITY TAX LEAGUE.

Municipal Ownership Theory vs. Results

These cost already a factor of Municipal ownership do not, and cannot deny that their propaganda is confusion. It is a theory which is the property of none and for which all cause is to take none responsible. The present Municipal ownership of utilities in Boston is a theory which has been tried and found wanting. Municipal ownership might be a factor of public ownership.

Municipal or government ownership has not been, is not now, and cannot be a success in a free country. The only success would be conducive from a great proposition and monstrous failure of the form of government under which we have been prosperous and successful.

We would view the growth of municipal ownership in Boston with alarm, as an effort made in order so to be controlled by the city's politicians, and municipal ownership, as to be confined by its corrupt controlling clubs.

NATIONAL EQUALITY TAX LEAGUE.

SOME propaganda used by power interests in fighting publicly-owned utilities went to the public not in the name of power companies, but as coming from taxpayers' leagues. C. Allen Brown tells a above about one of these "leagues" in a letter to John N. Cadby, the Wisconsin propagandist. He writes: "If anyone wants to use any of this stuff bearing the signature of National Equality Tax League, which is me, they are welcome to it." Below is the "league's" eloquent warning: "Who would rear the tower of Communism and Socialism, like the Tower of Babel of old, so high as to be crushed by its top-heavy crumbling debris." These are exhibits in the Federal Trade Commission investigation.

Dearest Money in Years Hits Stocks; Trade Better

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Aug. 13 (NBS)—Business and securities are not moving in the same direction. Business is going forward moderately; securities last week receded moderately.

The prospects for business for the fall are better than for years, perhaps for four generations, in the writer's opinion, mainly because of monetary conditions.

The improvement in general activity is not going to be announced. It is already well under way. Automobile production is being speeded up. Building industry conditions are found the prophets of pessimism. A decline in home-building is being offset by the construction of commercial, industrial and other large structures. Crowding progress continues to be made in the oil industry toward the solution of both production and price problems. Lower wages consumption, which growers are trying to expand still further, doubtless will be aided by cuts in the sales taxes.

Retail trade reports are distinctly more cheerful. The most notable gains are recorded in department-store sales. But they were unable to make any headway against last year's average quotation on the Stock Exchange during the week despite a rise. Dullness was the rule among the great majority of issues. The public will be neither bulled nor bear-ished on any considerable scale. A waiting attitude rules.

Selling has not yet become a factor in Wall Street. That they will do so sooner or later can be taken for granted.

AL LEADS IN THE FIRST N.E. POLL

HOOVER AT TOP IN 3 STATES

The first New England returns in the national straw vote being conducted by the Hearst newspapers, gave Gov. Smith a substantial lead over Herbert Hoover, in this section.

The New England poll is being conducted by the Boston Evening American in connection with the nationwide Presidential straw ballot.

The first tabulation shows Hoover the leader in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. But Massachusetts and Rhode Island gave Smith sufficient votes over the opposition to place the New Yorker at the top.

Boston did its share. Smith coerced practically every ward in the city. This of course is based on the postcard returns to date and does not mean that the entire city has completed its vote.

Hoover ran very strong in Ward 5, the home of Henry Parkman, Jr., who is a member of the Boston "Tea Council," and the "original Hoover man," in the city.

The returns so far show also a decided trend from Coolidge to Smith, not only in Boston, but in the other New England states as well.

Regardless of the fact, that Hoover holds the lead in three states outside of Massachusetts, even had women have switched from their vote of 1924 when they voted for Coolidge, to the Smith ranks of 1928.

Take Providence, R. I., where a block of 20 votes was tabulated. The entire block went for Smith, Hoover failing to register a vote.

In 1924 the straw vote at Providence showed that 21 votes for Coolidge and 5 for Davis. The switch showed that 21 strayed from the Republican path to the ranks of Democracy.

GETS COOLIDGE VOTE

At St. Johnsbury, Vt., a block of 20 votes showed the following: Hoover 24, Smith 6. In 1924 it was Coolidge 21, Davis 3.

Five women voted for Hoover and one for Smith, while in 1924 Coolidge got 5 and Davis none.

Smith managed to get three votes away from Coolidge, while Hoover was taking a lone woman vote from Davis.

Portland, Me., registered its approval of Herbert Hoover to the extent of 60 votes, and gave Governor Smith 46, in a total vote of 107. The women gave Hoover 37 and Smith 15. The 1924 Presidential ballots showed that the Maine city gave Coolidge 1,581 and Davis 258. The women in 1924 gave Coolidge 23 and Davis 4.

The most important factor, however, is the switching of votes. For instance, Smith corraled 37 votes from Coolidge, which included women. Hoover was successful in obtaining 5 from Davis, which contributed great votes to his Portland.

A block of votes tabulated from Augusta, Me., gave Hoover 17 and Smith 9. In 1924, Coolidge received 28 votes and Davis 2, the women stood together in the capital city, giving Hoover 2 votes and Smith 1, and in South Paris, Me., returns were recorded for the Republican and Democratic candidates respectively.

MORE WOMEN VOTE

A decided increase in the size of the women's vote is apparent from the early returns. Smith has made his solid appeal to the ladies in every New England state, even in the states that Hoover has the poll.

Smith's strength in blue ribbon cities is in Rhode Island and Massachusetts, especially Boston, where large increases in that respect are noted.

Barre, Montpelier, St. Johnsbury, Vt., and Portland, Me., all show that Smith has increased the women's vote in each of the cities by a good deal recorded for Davis in 1924, while, on the other hand, Hoover has failed to keep straight the vote given to Coolidge four years ago.

The early tabulations for Massachusetts, including Boston, give the following results:

Total vote cast 1077, Hoover 255, Smith 825. In 1924, Coolidge 547, Davis 372.

Women, 1928, Hoover 27, Smith 91. In 1924, Coolidge 56, Davis 29.

The changes are: Coolidge to Smith 238, which includes 25 women. Davis to Hoover 18, with no women recorded. Two hundred and twenty-two did not vote in 1924. This number includes 16 women.

In Maine, Hoover received 174 votes to Smith's 76, in a total of 250. In 1924 Coolidge got 162 to 52 for Davis. The women voted this year, according to the straw ballot: Hoover 23, Smith 13. In 1924 they gave Coolidge 25 and Davis 5.

The changes were: Coolidge to Smith 43, with seven included, while seven shifted from Davis to Hoover, with one woman included. Seven did not vote in 1924. This number included two women.

HAZEL DEYO BATCHELOR IS FOUND DEAD IN FLAT

New York, Aug. 13—Kneeling against a bed in an attitude of prayer, the body of Miss Hazel Deyo Batchelor, 33-year-old fiction writer, was found in her artistically furnished apartment in Village Institute on Washington sq., South.

When Hattie Johnson, a colored maid employed by Mrs. Batchelor, entered the flat to tidy it up, she found her mistress dead with her huge police dog, Pago, standing beside the body, faithful to the last.

Mrs. Batchelor was the wife of G. D. Batchelor, well-known newspaper cartoonist. They had not been living together for several months, although not legally separated.

HOOVER LEADING NATIONAL POLL

Smith gets the first low from Tennessee.

Texas, always Democratic, has been in an upheaval since the Houston convention, as reflected by the figures: Hoover 309, Smith 310.

Maryland, also considered safely Democratic, is going Republican, it is indicated. While Smith has 2757 to Hoover's 2595, complete all the returns with the first poll show the Republican growing stronger daily.

The first straw vote at Providence showed that 21 votes for Coolidge and 5 for Davis. The switch showed that 21 strayed from the Republican path to the ranks of Democracy.

SEE BLACKMER KIDNAP PLOT

Paris, Aug. 13 (INS)—A sensational report that an attempt was made to "kidnap" Henry M. Blackmer, rich American oil magnate and political Teapot Dome witness, was circulated here today.

The Foreign Office has under consideration a request from Washington for the extradition of Blackmer, who is wanted to answer a charge of perjury in connection with his income tax statements in Colorado.

According to the report Blackmer was invited to dine on a yacht flying the United States flag. At the last moment while he was stepping into a launch to go to the yacht one of his two bodyguards warned him there might be a plot and prevented him from leaving the dock.

According to the newspaper Presse the yacht was owned by enemies of Blackmer, who intended to carry him to the United States once it was on board.

BRITISH ENVOY TO SEE KELLOGG

London, Aug. 13—Following news today that Sir Austen Chamberlain is going to California, came word that while abroad the British Foreign minister will confer with Secretary of State Kellogg on the latter's world peace treaty.

Disarmament, China and other matters are on the program for the conference, it is said. It is believed the trip was for health reasons only, but now comes the news of more important duties to perform, a political standpoint.

There is a feeling that the peace treaty may be diverted into the League of Nations. However, at present, the people in many nations greet gladly the American initiative to end war, if possible, and in England, the state church has declared Aug. 27 an official day of prayer for the success of the treaty.

MONTE BLUE IN AERIAL FILM AT TWIN HOUSES

As a crowded transatlantic liner, Monte Blue is now appearing at the Twin Houses.

Monte Blue

Blue plays the part of a young American who is recognized as a notorious criminal by his father, believing that the boy has turned from his evil ways to lead a life of honesty and respectability. Blue attempts to prove to his father that he is innocent, but the latter refuses to believe him to be dead.

The rest of the picture is three and three-quarters of an hour of thrills and dramatic suspense, in which Blue stakes his life, his liberty and his future happiness in an effort to prove his innocence.

FLORENCE VIDOR AT BOSTON

Once again Florence Vidor qualifies as a comedienne of first rank.

"The Magnificent Flirt," now at the Keith-Albee Boston, presents the charming star in a role that gives an outstanding chance for her talents. She comes to the fore as a lover of the gallies and forgets her dignity in the High Life of Paris.

Florence Vidor

She becomes interested in a young American who is a nephew of a famous painter. He, in his way, is in love with Miss Vidor, the model for the great artist. The complications of infidelity and reconciliation are less loving; but, nevertheless, they do make eliminate, a climax which takes us to be a hearty laugh.

Supporting Miss Vidor in "The Magnificent Flirt" are Ian Keith, Paul Ellis, Arthur Lake and Jean Acker. Frank Borzage is the director.

An unusual cast supports the star in the names including Loretta Young, Len Kinney's leading woman in "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," Albert Conti, of "The Legion of the Condemned" fame, Marietta Millner, Edmund Breese, Thomas Meighan's wife, Matty Kemp, juvenile in "The Gold Rush" and Ned Sparks, the Whiteface comedian of Ziegfeld Follies, "Sporting Goods."

"THE RACKET" TOPS BIG BILL AT SCOLLAY SQUARE

"The Racket," the underworld film now at the Scollay, is treated in so different a manner that it will always be remembered and could not be classified as one of the many made along similar lines.

"The Racket" was adapted from the stage play of the same name, which enjoyed a healthful run on Broadway, and was successfully presented as a road attraction. Thomas Meighan personally selected the role and the play for himself, and words of praise should be heaped for his judgment. The play was written by a newspaperman, Bartlett Cormack, who wrote the play from a record of observations and experiences gained from his employment on one of the metropolitan dailies.

Meighan is supported by a good cast which has Marie Prevost in the feminine role, Louis Wolheim, whose work stands out, Lois Wilson, John Darrow, Richard Gallagher, Lee Moran, George Stone, Sam De Grasse, and others of equal standing. The picture was directed by Lewis Milestone, who recently turned out "Two Arabian Nights."

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land, in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

Yankee From China

Speaking of "Records"

We have many summer visitors and all are welcome. Between Ogunquit and Biddeford Pool five "best sellers" are almost ready for the printer and three modern comedies, each of which will stay on Broadway through an entire season, have been carried as far as Act III, Scene I.

At Peterborough, young artists and musicians of promise are holding themselves to the drudgery of lonely forenoons in secluded cabins buoyed by the promise of social intercourse when twilight falls.

The Republican candidate for Vice-President, who came to us for a rest following his arduous labors at Kansas City, will return for another just as soon as he has been "notified" of what happened there. Other Republicans, also of national reputation, are on their way to Maine, to make sure that the G. O. P. majority in next month's State election does not fall below 30,000.

But of all our famous and interesting visitors none is MORE interesting that Mr. Edward D. Cahota, of the National Sanitarium in South Dakota, at 80 years of age a visitor to his old home in Gloucester.

While on a voyage to the treaty ports of China in 1857, Captain Sargent S. Day, skipper of the last of Gloucester's square riggers, took on an eight-year-old cabin boy who proved to be such a likeable chap that the captain adopted him.

Edward Day Cahota, Chinese cabin boy, grew to manhood in Dorchester.

At fifteen, "Eddie" went to the front as a soldier of Co. I in the 23d Regiment, under Captain Edward Story. He saw "real" fighting at Cold Harbor.

Cape Ann is making much of his visit, showing the veteran every attention. He deserves it. He holds two extraordinary records. The only Chinese to enlist in the Union army, up to the time of the World War he was the only Chinese in the Regular establishment.

The comrade should be invited to visit Boston, where so many men of his race have risen to positions of importance in the business world and where, in Chinatown, youthful veterans of the World War would be glad to pay him honor and respect.

We "Flop" at Amsterdam

DO We?

Why this outcry because we are not winning all the events in the Olympics?

In total number of points, and in number of first places, we are far ahead of any competitor, even considering the entire British Empire as a single rival.

Our performers in the field events have swept all before them. Except for Barbuti's great victory in the 400 meters, our runners have not been up to expectations, but the trouble was partly with the expectations and not the runners.

It is a complete change of climate from New York to Amsterdam. It is no perceptible change from London or Paris or Berlin to Amsterdam.

As General MacArthur points out, our records were made on the lightning-fast American tracks. The cinder path at Amsterdam is slower, and rains have not improved its condition. The performances in the races where our boys were beaten were perhaps superior to the fast records we made at home.

Above all, Europe's physique and morale are recovering from the strain and preoccupation of war. And the simple living to which their young men and women are condemned is an advantage in competition with the youth of more prosperous America.

The year's Davis Cup matches and Olympic games will help us to snap out of our hallucination of international superiority in all forms of athletics. In the next Olympics, at Los Angeles in 1932, our representatives will feel less cocksure and will probably perform better.

Britain Builds Them BIG

Perhaps We Shall Do It, SOME Day

THIS IS SAID TO BE THE WORLD'S BIGGEST AIRPLANE—BRITISH, OF COURSE, NOT AMERICAN

Just to show you that things CAN be done, when a nation has common sense and looks ahead, here is a picture of Britain's "Colossus of the Air," the biggest airplane in the world.

You get an idea of its size by looking at the man standing on the tip of one wing.

This airplane weighs more than 40,000 pounds, unloaded.

'DIFFERENT' PEOPLE WORTH WATCHING

By DR. FRANK CRANE

USUALLY you get along better when you conform.

No matter how radical your ideas it is less trouble for the most part to act as other people do.

Nobody wants carved on his tombstone the epitaph, "Here lies a man who dared to go to the Grand Opera in his airt sleeves."

There are times, however, when we must assert our individuality. This is true particularly in our intellectual and moral life. Whoever will not dare to do right and to adhere to what he believes the truth no matter what other people think or do, is not much of a man.

I have always had a liking for queer people.

You can never tell what they are going to do. They may soar or flop, sprout wings or horns, write a masterpiece or go crazy.

If statistics could be gathered, I suppose they would show that nine out of ten queer people are queer and nothing more.

But you never know when you have hold of a world beater, so when you see those whom their neighbors think queer, you always have an element of the uncertain.

It is like watching for a firecracker to go off. Many are fizzes, but once in a while there is a real explosion.

Washington, D. C., never knew how to take Lincoln until after he died. He was always considered a little absurd to the last.

Then there was the poet Wordsworth, whose country neighbors thought he acted so strangely as he walked abroad composing his poems that they had the government send down detectives to watch him. It was thought he might be a spy for the French Revolutionists.

And good old Samuel Johnson, who touched every post as he went down the street, who always desired to come out of a door with the same foot forward and who would go back up the steps to come out again if he missed the first time. As queer a fish as ever lived. But the great man of his time in English literature.

Socrates was ridiculed and laughed at for his odd ways by the wits of Athens; Joan of Arc her neighbors held a little cracked when she told them of the voices; Saint Francis of Assisi was not taken seriously when he talked of "his little sisters, the larks."

Edison was a queer young man, getting fired for rigging up a device for electrocuting cockroaches and thus bringing undesirable publicity to his office, and for similar outlandish pranks; the noted electrician Steinmetz was a singular little man who wanted to live in a house without a square inch of lawn.

The list is long. You never know when the person you think queer may prove to be a genius.

Jean Jacques Rousseau said of himself: "I don't know whether I am better than my fellows, but I know I am different."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I AM NOT consistent—

AND I GLORY IN THE FACT!

I do not think the same thing two years in succession—nor even two days in succession—

And if I catch myself doing so I'm going to boot myself out of it. I realize that this attitude violates our best traditions. Consistency, I have been informed, is a treasure beyond price.

All right—you can have my share!

TO ME, THE GREATEST THING IN LIFE IS NOT TO HOLD TO ONE OPINION—BUT TO EXPERIENCE AS MANY NEW OPINIONS AS POSSIBLE WHILE THE OPINIONING IS GOOD.

Growing things aren't static. Growing things move, change, adjust, take on new forms from one minute to another.

I'm a growing thing. Why should I be at ten what I was at five? Why should I think at thirty-five what I thought at twenty? Or why should I believe today what I believed yesterday?

Twenty-four hours of experience have flowed by me since yesterday—hours in which, if I am mentally awake, I have seen long reaches of the human drama.

I have seen love in that time and hate and treachery and tenderness and despair. I have seen men broken by circumstances. And I have seen circumstances broken by men. I have seen beauty and ugliness and courage and fear and gobs of cussedness. I have seen things arise in the human heart—particularly in my own heart—that have given me the surprise of my life.

All this happened to me in the last twenty-four hours. All this happens to any one of us in any twenty-four hours, if we have the wit to perceive it.

TWENTY-FOUR HOURS OF ANY LIFE WILL MAKE ANY HUMAN BEING OVER IF HE'S WILLING TO BE MADE OVER.

Each day comes booming in like a great flood tide, bringing a salty deluge from the infinite sources of life, cleaning away the flotsam and jetsam of all the days that have gone before. Why should a human being stay the same—stay consistent—in the face of such ebb and flow?

And yet most of us do stay the same and take great credit to ourselves for doing so. We close our minds and harden our imaginations and glorify the process by calling it "consistency."

Change your mind!

Change it often!

Abhor an unchanged mind as you would abhor any other staleness—as you would abhor unchanged linen or stagnant water or aged eggs.

Stop being afraid to be different. Be as different as you possibly can, as often as you possibly can.

Growth is always different. Growth never stays at one given point. GROW!

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 13—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and to the Warwick to see Ted Cook, the California humorist, who explained he brought his wife with him because he thought it would look better. And to talk this and that, especially Los Angeles climate.

Worked awhile and to see Dr. Guy Campbell, the dentist, and drove him to his home at Dobbs Ferry and surprised to see what few changes in the Hudson Valley in the past few years and later drove on to Sleepy Hollow, a well named and somnolently peaceful section.

In the evening to Emil Fuchs' studio with others and met Janet Gaynor, the cinema player. Home where I found a strange white dog had strayed into my apartment and was sound asleep side by side with my dog. So to bed with both of them.

NO street in Manhattan bubbles with activity like Delancey—the East Side's Broadway. Everybody is a merchant even to small boys who circulate among the motorists with trays of home-made candy. In the patch of park in the center the old folks seek a little comfort.

The benches are filled with old bearded men and wigged women who have a dull wonderment for the new world in faded eyes. In the street is the Libby, the largest Jewish hotel in the world, which features the novelty of a Turkish bath cabaret at night.

Sidewalks are honeycombed with little portable stands, many of which sell a famous East Side delicacy—parboiled salted water melon seeds. Celery beer is the favorite tipple. There are kosher cafes where patrons who stand up at wall counters are served one-third cheaper.

Among the picturesque street musicians at the subway kiosks are a blind accordion player and a gypsy violinist with rings in his ears. Tired housewives trudge along with capacious market baskets. All wives of merchants work in the shops and children frolic about every doorway.

The financial soundness of this slice of the Ghetto is displayed by many banks. Under the lower end of the Delancey street bridge is the famous push cart market, a rabbis from daylight until dusk where every imaginable household article may be purchased.

AROUND Rivington and Chrystie st, the shops and sidewalk stands sell single cigarettes—or any number desired less than a package. This is a concession to slim purses of newsies, bootblacks and errand boys.

STREETS of the Ghetto are the children's playground. They make no effort to avoid traffic dangers and the burden of responsibility is upon trespassing drivers. And woe betide the luckless driver who goes through the narrow streets carelessly. He finds himself the target for a shower of sticks, stones and overripe vegetables.

Allen st, which is a hive of brass pounders and their wares, has a basement coffee shop that serves a long horrible smelling Turkish cigarette with each cup of coffee.

A Broadway variant for asking a friend to "tear a herring" is to invite him to "shuck a tumale."

AT a Fifth ave. wedding which is said to have cost a certain pere $25,000, the butlers receiving guests wore knickerbockers, powdered wigs, and, slippers with rhinestone heels. I'll never feel affluent until I have a butler with sidewheel whiskers and rhinestone heels. Come children to the pantry and watch Parkins' heels glitter!

AND a carriage starter at a new hotel wears patent leather boots up to his knees, a purple velvet sport shirt and a Napoleonic hat of gold cloth. If it isn't one thing it is something else.

Britain Builds Them BIG

day to see this giant machine flying around with a couple of hundred other British planes.

Britain has ruled the waves for a long time—the WATER waves—and now she seeks to rule the AIR waves also.

She won't do it, if France can help it.

But THIS country will never interfere. Our specialty is sloppy talk about peace.

Then when war does come, we put $1 a year "patrioteers" to work. They spend a billion dollars for aircraft graft and incompetency, without producing any aircraft that will fly and another billion or so building worthless ships that never go to sea.

And that's OUR EFFICIENCY.

Some day we may get a lesson that will teach us to look ahead, and do some building on our own account.

We cannot always forget, WITH SAFETY, that we are nearer to Europe today than Napoleon was to England before Waterloo.

In a short time, with improving aircraft, we shall be only a few hours from Asia.

Whether we like it or not, we shall have to wake up SOME day. If we don't, someone from Europe or Asia will WAKE US UP.

Magic of a Word

"Marathon"

SOME words have magic in them. A word with magic in all languages is Marathon. It is a little over 2400 years ago that a young soldier staggered into the Agora, or market place, of Athens, gasped the one word for which all citizens had been waiting—"victory"—and died.

Yet today every schoolboy knows the Greek runner's name, Pheidippides. He will remain for all time the most famous runner in history, just as Paul Revere will remain the most famous jockey.

And with good reason. They ran and rode not for the sake or sport of exercise, nor at festive games celebrating some great event. They were themselves the event.

Paul Revere aroused Americans to the resistance which developed into independent America. Pheidippides brought to the world the assurance that the young Athenian Republic was not to be a satrapy of Persia, but free to teach the ages the art of beautiful living.

The scores of thousands in the Amsterdam Stadium on Sunday, awaiting the opening of the portals for the entrance of El Ouafi, the Algerian Arab who won the twenty-mile race, were re-enacting one of the great dramas of history, staged at Athens over 2400 years ago.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

It is a hard and nice subject for a man to speak of himself: it grates his own heart to say anything of disparagement, and the reader's ears to hear anything of praise from him.—Cowley.

Contentment is a pearl of great price, and whoever procures it at the expense of 10,000 desires makes a wise and happy purchase.—Balzuy.

Books make up no small part of human happiness.
—Frederick the Great.
